Pittsburgh, Kansas
He Won't Be President
Pfaffenzeller's Plan
The Next War

By Arthur Brisbane

Copyright, 1920.

Mandel Sener, secretary of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce, thinks the world should know about Pittsburgh. It should know, and it shall. This particular baby Pittsburgh is in Kansas, not Pennsylvania. It has 20,000 inhabitants. A few years ago it was a big Kansas cornfield. Last year from beneath the cornfield miners dug and shipped five million tons of coal. This year they will ship seven million tons.

The mines are so near the centre of the town that railroads, so far as Pittsburgh is concerned, are unimportant, a great thing for manufacturing.

In some places the coal is so near the roots of the corn that a big steam shovel can strip off the dirt, leaving the coal bare, ready to be scooped out.

Tile plants, brick plants, zinc smelters, many wonderful things exist where the cornfield used to be.

What do you suppose will be the extent of industry, business and prosperity in this country when all the cornfields are fully developed, men using the wealth below the surface, the fertility on the surface and taking nitrogen from the air above to add to fertility? It is a wonderful country, and has hardly started.

The main thing is to keep it independent, self-ruling, out of any European mix-up, free to attend to its own affairs, with its citizens neither taxed nor conscripted by any League of Nations foreign council.

David S. Beach of Bridgeport, Conn., candidate for President of the United States—perhaps you didn't know it—starts his campaign, as he should, with a two-page advertisement in his home newspaper. Under portraits of Lincoln, Washington and himself, he announces that Secretary Daniels' prayer for another Lincoln has been answered. The name of the answer is David S. Beach.

Offhand you might say that Mr. Beach is starting late, and cannot possibly be elected, although he says in his advertisement, "Abraham Lincoln freed the negroes, David S. Beach will set mankind free from financial slavery."

This, however, is certain, David S. Beach's chance of election is exactly as good as the chance of Mr. Cox. Mr. Beach accepts no more than one dollar from any campaign fund contributor.

Mr. Joseph J. Pfaffenzeller has a plan for a new improved League of Nations. He offers one dollar a minute for fifteen minutes to be spent reading about his plan.

Many men in the United States, tens of thousands, would not devote fifteen minutes to any proposition for a dollar a minute, yet think ten dollars a day high wages for a skilled mechanic, who must devote eight hours to the problems of his trade.

Until the League of Nations, designed to make Uncle Sam the paymaster and servant of Europe, and responsible for Europe's criminal wars, shall have been disposed of, nothing else is important.

After that will come a time to plan what this country has always wanted, a civilized method of arbitrating quarrels between nations, as courts compel men to arbitrate quarrels between individuals.

The next war is not going to be a pleasant enterprise. When you read that discussions between the United States and Japan as to "the right of Japan" to colonize United States territory have reached "the serious stage," you realize that this country, with men, ships, submarines and especially flying machines, should keep itself thoroughly prepared.

The next war will not start in the old-fashioned way, with distant cannonading heard by great cities, as troops meet on the border.

The next war will start a few miles above the great city, with a fleet of enemy airships coming through the moonlight dropping bombs containing deadly gases, capable of suffocating an entire city.

Such war, most horrible, should be unthinkable. But if there must be such war, this country must be first to do the suffocating.

Mr. Cox said in Nebraska, that if Mr. William Jennings Bryan had been nominated, he, Mr. Cox, would have supported Mr. Bryan. He said he learned to be a Progressive by studying Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan, however, never "progressed" so far as to believe that the United States should be ruled from across the ocean. He never believed and never will believe in Article X of the League of Nations. His Jackson Day speech made that clear. Therefore, he does not return Mr. Cox's compliment, and he is not supporting Mr. Cox for the Presidency, as you have doubtless observed.

SWIG CHARGES BANK PLOT TO RUIN TREMONT TRUST

16 BABIES TAKEN BY POLICE

Removed From Tremont Street House; Woman Proprietor Is Ordered to Court

Sixteen infants were taken from a boarding house for babies at No. 658 Tremont street today by police of the East Dedham Street Station, acting on complaint of Captain Driscoll.

A summons was issued an hour later for Mrs. Clara A. Williams, proprietor of the establishment, ordering her to appear in court Friday.

She will be prosecuted under the provision of the law which forbids anybody to conduct an establishment caring for more than four children, without a license.

Nine of the 16 children were found in an attic room, according to Sergeants McDonald and Carey, who conducted the search.

Six others were found in a downstairs room, and one was in a baby carriage in the yard.

Two of the children were alleged to be in need of medical attention, and were turned over to the State Board of Charities.

Most of the other infants were returned to their mothers, largely working women who are away from home all day, according to Mrs. Williams.

Mrs. Williams, a woman of motherly appearance, came to Boston two years ago. She said she was ignorant of the law regarding licenses.

Four women were attached to the establishment and looked after the babies, according to Mrs. Williams.

Mrs. Williams said there were three large rooms in the top of the house where the children wer kpt. Se said that in addition to the cildren there were four lodgers in the house and some of the children belonged to them.

Odd Fellows' Convention Sidelights

Will some one in Boston tell C. O. McMichael of Winston-Salem, N. C., where he can get old-fashioned corn bread?

Mr. McMichael, representative to the Sovereign Grand Lodge, said today he had scoured the city in search of corn pone without success. At one place he was offered corn muffins.

"They had sugar in them," he added, disgustedly.

Then McMichael told how real corn bread, the kind he gets in North Carolina, should be made.

"If I could get that with all the fresh fish you have in Massachusetts," he declared, "I certainly would be happy."

But the North Carolinian said both he and Mrs. McMichael were glad they came to Boston, in spite of the dearth of corn pone. It is their first visit to this city.

"Down South I had an idea that the people of Massachusetts were a cold, calculating lot," he said. "That opinion has been upset. The people here are as hospitable as any in the South. I have six sons back home and when I get back I am going to tell them things that I'll bet will change their opinion of Northerners."

The gestures of a Bostonian giving directions to one of the visiting Odd Fellows are similar to those of a jazz dancer, according to George B. Johnston of Washington, D. C., a past grand and past chief patriarch.

"When someone begins to tell you about streets here," he said, "he uses both arms and waves them in all sorts of wiggles to denote the turns and curves you must take to reach a certain destination."

Parley P. Christensen, candidate for President on the Farmer-Labor ticket, whose home is in Salt Lake City, never misses a session of the Sovereign Grand Lodge at Ford Hall. He is one of the most enthusiastic Odd Fellows here.

W. H. Leedy of Indianapolis, grand secretary of the order in Indiana, was reminiscent today after returning from the railroad station, where he had paid $47 for a railroad ticket and accommodations to Chicago.

"When I came here to the meeting in 1898," he said, "I paid $7 in Chicago for a round-trip ticket to Boston.

"The rates were too low then and too high now," he declared. "If the railroads had charged enough then and used the money for upkeep of equipment, we would not be compelled to pay such excessive tariffs today."

Friends of "Uncle" George Rogers of LaFayette, Ind., eighty-nine years old, claim that he is the oldest Odd Fellow at the convention. "Uncle" George doesn't know, he says, but he reckons he is one of the oldest. He has been an Odd Fellow sixty-six years, and his record of membership and honors, which he has printed with a photograph of himself on cards, looks like the index of a mail order catalogue. While in Boston he is stopping with his son, Thomas H. Rogers, in Cambridge.

Among those who recalled the convention of 1898 in Boston today were Joseph Oliver, once lord mayor of Toronto, Canada, and A. E. Gibson of Caldwell, Idaho. Both attended the meeting here twenty-two years ago. Mr. Oliver has been elected grand sire and Mr. Gibson is editor of the Idaho Odd Fellow.

40,000 I. O. O. F. IN PARADE

Pass in Review Before Governor, Mayor and New Head of Sovereign Grand Lodge

The scarlet banner and the three links of Odd Fellowship were lifted high in Boston today, when the ceremonies attendant upon the ninety-sixth annual communication of the Sovereign Grand Lodge reached their climax in a parade of 40,000 men and women members of subordinate and Rebekah lodges and encampments of the Patriarchs Militant.

Superintendent Crowley and other police observers of long experience estimated that at least 250,000 New Englanders are in Boston to witness the big doings of Odd Fellows' Week.

Friendship, love and truth, faith, hope and charity, never had a more notable exemplification than by the marching members of this great international fraternity, whose practice of some of the corporal works of

PITCHER WILLIAMS CONFESSES

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Claude Williams, second pitcher of the Chicago White Sox, confessed to the Grand Jury today that he had accepted a bribe to lose games in the 1919 World Series.

FELSCH ADMITS BRIBE

Got $5,000, Says White Sox Fielder, Corroborating Cicotte's Confession

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Oscar "Happy" Felsch, centre fielder of the Chicago White Sox, confessed today that Cicotte's story of corruption in the 1919 World's Series was correct. "I got my $5,000," Felsch said, "and I guess the others did, too. We were double-crossed out of an even split of the $100,000."

By International News Service.

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Twelve more indictments against ball players and gamblers probably will be voted today or tomorrow by the Grand Jury, which yesterday indicted eight members of the Chicago White Sox, according to a statement today by Harvey L. Replogle, assistant State's attorney, who is conducting the probe.

Three Eastern gamblers and two baseball players on National League teams are said to be among those facing indictment.

"I will confer with another White Sox player who is inclined to want to tell what he knows of the manipulation of the World's Series last year.

"At present I have every reason to believe he will follow the footsteps of Cicotte and Jackson.

"However, I am of the opinion that all the crooked work was not confined to this series. Just how many and what other games have been 'thrown' I am not in a position to say, but there is little question that some of those played this year have looked queer.

"Naturally we are perhaps more interested in prosecuting the crooked gamblers, who are more responsible

Braves and Phillies in Twin Bill

Braves Field, Sept. 29.—With still a mathematical chance of landing last place, the Braves launched into the final series with the Phillies—chief rivals for the position—at Braves Field this afternoon.

Two games were on the calendar for the day, and should the Braves lose both they will dive majestically into the cellar. The Tribe, after a tough season, has determined not to stand for that final indignity.

It was the last double header of the campaign, which will be concluded locally with three single games between Braves and Phils.

MORE COAL NOW THAN IN 1919

Boston Figures Up to Sept. 1 Show an Increase of 272,847 Tons of Anthracite

In spite of the claim of local dealers to the contrary, more anthracite and bituminous coal was received in Boston up to September 1 this year than in 1919, and statistics at the Boston Chamber of Commerce prove it.

The records show that the anthracite received in Boston up to September 1 amounted to 1,073,849 tons, against 801,002 tons in 1919, a gain this year of 272,847 tons of hard coal.

There were 2,238,436 tons of bituminous received in Boston up to September 1 this year, compared to 1,784,844 tons of soft coal in 1919, an increase this year of 453,592 tons.

The receipts to date this year by rail were 155,863 tons of anthracite and 62,613 bituminous; by sea, 917,896

NEWTON MAN FREED ON DRAFT COMPLAINT

William Deutschele, twentyeight years old, of No. 18 Oakland street, Newton, was discharged today by United States Commissioner Hayes after trial on a charge of falsifying his questionnaire to obtain deferred classification under the draft law. Commissioner Hayes dismissed the complaint for lack of evidence, and added that if he had been a member of the draft board he "possibly would not have given the defendant deferred classification."

STATE EXAMINER IS ACCUSED

A State bank examiner deliberately tried to ruin the Tremont Trust Company last Winter, and as a reward was appointed treasurer of a big savings bank by the big banking interests, Simon Swig, vice-president of the Tremont Trust Company, declared today.

He made the statement as he entered the office of Bank Commissioner Joseph C. Allen for a conference which lasted more than an hour.

During the conference Swig was taken suddenly ill. Commissioner Allen dashed out of the office to the State Department of Health and returned with a physician.

Before the doctor arrived, however,

SWIG CHARGES PLOT TO RUIN TREMONT TRUST

Swig had recovered. He said later the illness was due to the intense strain under which he had been laboring the past few days.

After the conference Swig said Commissioner Allen told him the Tremont Trust Company is absolutely sound. He said he could have saved the Cosmopolitan Trust Company by loaning it money had the big banking interests kept their hands off.

INTENDS TO "EXPOSE PLOT."

"In a few days, when this situation clears up, I will hire Mechanics Hall and expose one of the greatest plots ever known in the United States," declared Mr. Swig.

"Has this plot anything to do with the banking situation of the past few days?" he was asked.

"Anything to do with it? It is responsible for it."

"Is there anything to the story that the present banking situation is an aftermath of the Ponzi affair?"

"There is absolutely not," replied Mr. Swig, "this is a plot."

"Is this plot due to personal, political or banking rivalry?"

"To banking rivalry. It is a case of the lion eating up the lamb without heart and without conscience. It is deliberate murder. The interests have no thought of the people whose money they are tying up for months—people who had stored away this money to buy their winter clothing, to pay their winter coal bills and to keep a roof over their heads. It is murder.

STILL IN EFFECT.

Asked if the ninety-day clause was still in effect in his bank, Mr. Swig said: "Yes, it is. But I never intended it to remain in effect for long. As a matter of fact we loaned several thousand dollars yesterday to depositors, taking their bankbooks as security.

"I have a heart of flesh and blood and it goes out to these people. But these interests have hearts of marble and steel."

At that moment Richard Pinksohn of the Cosmopolitan Trust Company came out of Commissioner Allen's office. Mr. Swig pointed to him, and said, "And my heart goes out to those people, too."

He asked Mr. Pinksohn "how it looked," and the latter answered, "As bright as we could expect."

"I offered to lend these people from $500,000 to $1,000,000," continued Mr. Swig, referring to the Cosmopolitan. "It was more than they needed. But the big fellows would not let them alone."

"THEY ARE NO GOOD."

Turning to Secretary Wallace of Commissioner Allen's office, Mr. Swig said "As far as you and Mr. Allen are concerned, I want to say I have received every courtesy. But I can't say as much for some of your examiners. They are no good.

"Last year, when these interests tried to ruin me, these examiners also tried to drive me to the wall. One of them has since been rewarded with a job as treasurer in one of the savings banks.

"This man said my capital was impaired at that time. I challenged him to prove it. He produced his own figures, showing my capital was impaired to the extent of $6,000.

"'But,' I protested, 'you don't mention here my office fixtures, my vaults and furnishings. Don't they count? I paid $160,000 for them not long ago.'

THREATENED HIM.

"He said they didn't count. Then I put my fist under his nose and told him he was no good."

"'Some men in my position would shoot you for this, but I am not a murderer. If it was anyone else but me you would have placed a substantial value on the furniture. You are doing that for every other institution in this city.'

"They had me up here night after night until the early hours of the morning before the then Bank Commissioner and the Attorney-General. Finally I demanded a showdown with the result you know. Some of the examiners with the department at that time are still in the Bank Commissioner's employ.

Secretary Wallace here interrupted to remark: "This was not under the present administration."

"Never mind," replied Swig. "I want to see the bank commissioner at once."

"NO MORE MEDDLING."

"The bank commissioner told me," continued Mr. Swig, "that no bank stands better than ours, and that he wishes that he had as little to worry about. He said he made that report officially to Governor Coolidge.

"During the Spring, when the State itself was badly in need of money, every other bank in Boston refused it. But our bank came forward with $5,000,000 at 5.45 per cent. interest, a lower rate than any other State treasurer in the United States was charged at that time.

"Everything will be all right, but there should be no more meddling."

On leaving the bank commissioner's office Mr. Swig informed newspapermen that he had not been feeling well in there, but that it was only a temporary illness. He further announced that when he had fully recovered he would hire Mechanics Hall and tell the public the whole story.

Asked his purpose in going to the Commissioner he said:

"The situation has been grave for days. There has been too much agitation. I wanted to tell him that the situation would clarify just as soon as the agitation stopped, and that you can't put out a fire by dumping gasoline into it."

Allen Sure No More Banks Will Be Closed

Bank Commissioner Allen today declared the situation had "clarified," and he was sure no more banks would be closed. Referring to the alleged appeal to the Clearing House Committee to aid the small trust companies, he said he believed the committee meant to do so, but he did not think occasion had arisen.

Mr. Allen said: "Up to the present all the information I have on the banking situation is very favorable. I do not anticipate any further closings.

"I wish to say, in regard to the Tremont Trust Company, that Mr. Swig came here today of his own volition to discuss banking conditions in general rather than his own company in particular.

"I have no doubt as to the solvency of the Tremont Trust Company, and the public should be reassured with regard to this institution and all other Boston trust companies."

Asked what happened at the conference of the Clearing House Committee members when it was proposed the big banks go to the aid of the smaller ones, Mr. Allen said:

"We discussed the financial situation. I think the members of the Clearing House Committee as they spoke here were ready to take action if the occasion arose. I feel now that the occasion has not arisen. I have felt yesterday and today that the dark clouds had rolled by."

HENRY F. HURLBURT TO PROBE AUTO THEFTS

Henry F. Hurlburt, of No. 53 State street, one of the best known attorneys in the country, today was appointed a special attorney-general to take charge of the State investigation of automobile thefts. The appointment was made by Attorney-General Allen and confirmed by the Governor's Council. The attorney-general stated Mr. Hurlburt would have the services of an assistant attorney-general and had arranged his private affairs so he could devote a great deal of time to the investigation. Material which has been gathered during several months of investigation will be turned over to Mr. Hurlburt.

ENGLAND FACING SEVEREST LIVING HARDSHIP IN YEARS

Washington, Sept. 29.—That Great Britain is having its own troubles with the high cost of living is indicated in a report made to the Department of Commerce by Wilbur J. Page, acting commercial attache at London, who says indications are that the coming Winter will see the most severe living conditions experienced in many years.

STAGING FALLS; 1 DEAD, 2 HURT

Shingles, Planking and Tools Drop Upon Workmen After 25-Foot Plunge

One man was killed and two others were seriously injured today when a staging collapsed, causing them to fall 25 feet at No. 62 Alexander street, Roxbury.

The dead man was Alexander McDonald aged 65, of No. 15 Baldwin street, Hyde Park. Thomas Harding, aged 52 of No. 18 Prospect street, Everett, and Daniel E. Rice, aged 62 of No. 62 Alexander street, are in the City Hospital.

The men were shingling the roof when the staging gave way. They plunged from the roof and as they landed bundles of shingles, planking and tools fell on them.

Persons in the vicinity notified the police. The three men were placed in ambulances but on arrival at the hospital McDonald was dead. Harding was found suffering from multiple injuries and Rice had a severe laceration over the left eye and numerous other cuts. Owing to their age, not much hope is entertained for their recovery.

CAPTURES FOUR IN STOLEN AUTO

Quick action by Traffic Officer Manuel J. Suzan, when four men in an automobile refused to halt at his signal today, led to the arrest of the men charged with larceny of the car. The incident occurred about 11:30 a. m. at Washington and Franklin streets. When his signal was ignored Suzan chased the car, jumped onto the running board, and ordered the men to drive to traffic headquarters, where they were questioned by Sergeant William P. Gaffney.

As a result all were held. According to the police, the car was stolen in Central Falls, R. I., whence it was driven to Manchester, N. H., where the occupants broke into a store and took tobacco, pipes, cigars and cigarettes. They also, the police say, broke into three or four gasoline stations to refill their tank.

The men gave their names as William F. McNally, Donat J. and Arthur N. Boissonneault, brothers, and Felix Cote. McNally and Donat Boissonneault face an additional charge of carrying loaded revolvers.

I. O. O. F. PASS IN FOUR REVIEWS

Governor, Mayor, New Grand Sire and Marshal Salute 40,000 Paraders

mercy—visiting the sick, burying the dead, fathering to the fatherless—are among its many claims to attention and admiration.

PARADE STARTS AT 1 P. M.

The big parade started at 1 o'clock from the Arlington street side of the Public Garden. The line of march is through Arlington, Beacon, School and Washington streets, Temple Place, Tremont street and Boylston street to Park square.

There were four reviews. Governor Coolidge, members of his staff, State Senators, State officials and their ladies saw the procession from a stand erected on the State House lawn. At City Hall, a block and a half away, Mayor Peters reviewed the marchers. On the Tremont street side of the Common, Judge Henry V. Borst, of the New York Supreme Court, Grand Sire of the sovereign grand lodge, viewed the marchers. Finally came the Park square review, by Chief Marshal Gen. William H. Oakes, Chief of Staff Col. Henry L. Kincaide and W. C. Gurney, commander of the Patriarchs Militant.

The parade was in thirty-two divisions. It required about five hours to pass a given point.

MILTON HAS RIGHT OF LINE.

Right of line in the big parade went to Massachusetts Lodge No. 1 of Milton, by virtue of seniority. The Milton lodge is the oldest in the State, but there was nothing in the lively step of its members to suggest the approach of senility.

The colors, the presence of so many women marchers, the picturesque uniform of the plumed Patriarchs, helped to make a picture that the thousands who saw it will not soon forget. In many was born the wish to "be" an Odd Fellow. In other strangers was created a new respect for a fraternal organization with millions of members and subordinate lodges throughout the world. The floats, which brought up the rear of the imposing procession, were among the most attractive features of a memorable day.

PLENTY OF SAFEGUARDS.

Every possible precaution was taken to safeguard not only marchers but spectators. Ambulances were stationed at Charles and Beacon streets and Charles and Boylston streets, later to move with the paraders. Members of the Women's Volunteer Motor Corps, co-operating with Boston Metropolitan Chapter of the Red Cross, erected a first aid tent on Charles street mall. There were never so many alert young policemen on duty on a Boston parade day.

The procession moved promptly on the stroke of 1, as everybody who knows the Chief Marshal, General William H. Oakes, expected it to move. The General's Chief of Staff was Colonel Henry L. Kincaide and his Adjutant General Colonel Ernest K. Shaw.

Tonight's three big evens of the 96th annual communication of the Sovereign Grand Lodge will be: First, an address in the National Theatre by Grand Sire-elect Joseph Oliver, of Toronto; second, a concert and ball in the Irvington Street Armory, and third, a display of fireworks, to which the public is invited, in Charles River Basin.

AMERICAN TO HAVE PLAY BY PLAY NEWS ON SERIES

A faithful baseball fan always regrets that, he cannot take in the Worlds Series games. He regrets it until he loses sleep but—he always knows that he can find some consolation in the corking good stories sent in by wire from the big staff of the Boston American. He knows that Flatley, Damon Runyon, Hugh Fullerton, Jack Vieock and "Bugs" Baer will "shoot" the whole story over the wire, and that Jack Gillooly, Conway and others will add the Bokton "slant" to the festivities. Everything is all set for the big opening next Tuesday. And the thirty-five or forty thousand loyal rooters who will have to "see" the games from the pages of the Boston American will get an eyefull—every day!

DAUGHTER OF JUSTICE DUBUQUE IS MARRIED

Fall River, Sept. 29.—Miss Pauline Esther Dubuque, daughter of Justice Hugo A. Dubuque, of the Superior Court, was today married to Joseph F. Rockett of Warren, R. I. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. McCarthy, P. R., of Sacred Heart Church, assisted by Rev. Fr. Michael J. Dwyer, formerly assistant district attorney of Suffolk County, and Rev. Fr. Cullen of Taunton. The bride was attended by her twin sister, Mrs. Albert E. Perron, while Vincent Smith, of Warren, was best man.

HARDING LEADS IN AMERICAN'S NATION-WIDE STRAW VOTE

LEAGUE IS THE BIG ISSUE

Intense Interest Manifested in Campaign as Election Day Approaches

The Boston American is conducting a nation-wide presidential poll.

As the 1920 campaign gains momentum the question as to who will be the next President of the United States is gradually taking precedence over all others in the public mind.

The apathy which was manifest at the outset of the Presidential race, has been turned to intense interest because of the issues of national and world-wide import involved.

Among these issues are the League of Nations and the maintenance of the integrity of America as a nation, questions which have aroused public interest to the highest pitch.

To determine as near as possible in what direction the political winds will blow, the Boston American is taking straw ballots nation-wide. These ballots are being distributed from the Atlantic to the Pacific coast.

In order that the most reliable forecast may be obtained for forecast, and to bring the poll out of the sphere of any local influence in the big cities, the voting is being conducted by industries and occupations. In this manner the political alignment, it is believed, may be properly summarized and the expression of the voters of New England and other sections of the country properly assumed as indicative of whom the nation will elect President in November.

OCCUPATIONAL POLL IS NEW.

The occupational poll is a new method of obtaining a reliable forecast of the result of the presidential contest.

Representative men and women in industry, in agriculture and in professions and housewives, it is believed, will form a proper basis from which an average may be taken which will be reliable for a forecast.

The poll will be taken with the utmost secrecy in industrial circles in order that the voter may not be embarrassed in any manner through the marking of his ballot.

HARDING HAS BIG LEAD.

Announcements of results from day to day will be by industrial groups, showing how a representative number of each group intend to vote for President.

In the first Boston poll showing the result of the voting of 101 railroad employes discloses a large percentage in favor of Senator Harding over Governor Cox.

Not only will the poll show what the presidential vote is likely to be, but it will answer many important questions of the day including how the women of the country will view the various candidates.

Results of the first poll:

CHARGE OFFICER WAS DRUNK

Physician Who Says He Was Beaten Makes Complain Against Frank A. Norton

An investigation by District Attorney Pelletier in the case of Patrolman Frank A. Norton, who was suspended from the Joy street station for an alleged attack on Dr. John S. McCormack, a prominent Roxbury physician, of No. 405 Huntington avenue, is expected to unearth sensational testimony.

The physician alleges he was badly beaten on Batavia street by the officer, who was later arrested on the charge of drunkenness.

Norton will be arraigned in the Roxbury District Court on October 8 to answer the charges.

Dr. McCormack alleges that he found the policeman in the front seat of his automobile after he had returned from a professional call on Batavia street. When he ordered the man from the car, the doctor alleges, Norton assaulted him. Norton was consequently arrested after he had been taken to the Back Bay station by officers of that division who found the men fighting in the street.

Norton steadfastly denied that he was intoxicated and alleges that he was assaulted by the physician when they met in a building on Batavia street and had retired to the street after the argument.

The officer claims he was leaving a party in a Batavia street apartment house after some members of the party had started to drink. He claims he met the physician, and after some words the doctor grabbed a bag from his automobile and swung it at his head. Several other men, he alleges, jumped into the fracas, and when officers from the Back Bay station arrived the entire party was put into the physician's car and Norton was later booked at the station charged with assault and drunkenness.

Norton alleges he demanded the arrest of the physician for drunkenness when he arrived at the station, but that the superior officer ordered him to the guardroom and declared he would take charge of the matter.

The suspended officer is a veteran of the World War. He served with the 104th Infantry, of the Yankee Division, and has been on the police force about eleven months.

According to police records Patrolman Frank A. Norton was given 210 hours' punishment duty for infractions of the police regulations some time ago.

Norton is married and lives with his wife and two children in Jackson square, Roxbury.

Wellesley Girls Are Waiting on Tables

Wellesley girls are receiving a first-hand introduction to the servant problem.

The academic atmosphere, or the lack of movies and restrictions about callers, may be responsible. Anyway the college is having great difficulty in procuring housemaids and waitresses.

But the students have met the situation. In Tower Court ten college girls, many of whom would not even open the front door at home, have volunteered to wait on the table and assist the few maids left.

As an inducement to housemaids, Wellesley is offering special classes in art, music, or any subject they desire.

OIL POURED ON IRISH HOMES

Soldiers Put Mallow to Torch; 2 Killed, Many Wounded in New Belfast Riots

Dublin, Sept. 29.—Forbidden by the curfew law to go onto the streets in the night time the municipal firemen of Mallow, Cork County, remained in their houses while the homes of their neighbors were going up in flames all around them.

Fifty houses and factories were burned. More than half of the population fled. The refugees charged that officers led policemen and soldiers in sacking the town before it was set on fire.

The buildings were sprinkled with kerosene and touched off by the British police in reprisal for an attack upon the police barracks. Mills were set on fire simultaneously in various parts of the town and the fire brigade could not turn out on account of the curfew order.

Belfast, Sept. 29.—Street fighting, in which at least two persons were killed and many wounded, was in progress here throughout the night. The city was in darkness. Rioters cut the feed wires leading to the electric power station.

Troops fired upon the mob and at times the fusillades between soldiers and rioters reached great violence. There was a pitched battle in Falls road.

Heavy forces of troops are patrolling the streets. Tanks are held in readiness.

Stole 18 Curtains; Fined $50

Charged with stealing 18 curtains from Bertha Ruther of No. 358 Columbus avenue, John Greenough, eighty years old, of Buckingham street, was fined $50 in Dorchester court today. Sentence was suspended when he promised restitution.

DONDERO UNCLE TO PONZI

Never a Partner, Name Used to Cover Law, Receiver Is Told

Charles Ponzi, testifying before Referee Olmstead today, declared that John S. Dondero, who he admitted was his uncle, was not a partner, simply an investor.

Guiglielmo Bertollotti, also named as a partner, was Ponzi's landlord in Parma, Italy, but has been dead for some time, witness said.

Questioned by Attorney Wasserman, for the Ponzi Creditors' Association, Ponzi said that when Dondero first invested there were only about fifty clients, but this number grew to 35,000.

Referee Olmstead was frequently forced to come to Ponzi's aid because of the nature of the questions asked by Wasserman.

Questioned about the two certificates filed at the City Hall, Ponzi admitted he made out both and filed them without legal advice. He said he put down the names of Dondero and Bertollotti as partners to cover the law.

Another mystery developed when it was learned that the receivers today filed an attachment for $10,000 at the Middlesex Registry of Deeds against Mrs. Maria Gracia Bianca of Winthrop, in connection with a suit to recover $6,500 loaned the woman by Ponzi. No such person could be located in Winthrop, and it could not be learned when the loan was made nor for what purpose.

Ponzi later explained that Dondero was only an uncle by marriage, and said that he employed him as an agent. He did not remember how much Dondero made out of the Securities Exchange Company, but admitted it might have been $100,000. The witness said he signed Dondero's name to the certificate of partnership without the latter's knowledge.

Ponzi said his reason for putting the two names on the second certificate of partnership was to protect him against a suit which he expected to be brought by the Fidelity Trust Company in connection with two loans totalling $1,500.

WOMEN VOTERS MAY ACT AS ELECTION OFFICERS

Attorney General Allen, in an opinion handed down today, declared that women may be appointed as election officers provided they are qualified voters. A woman may also sign the nomination papers for a candidate for public office if she is a duly registered voter. Candidates, he said, may not use the words "Independent Republican" or "Independent Democrat" but may characterize himself only as "Independent."

Ice Man Is Fined

Charged with failing to have his name on his wagon, and with giving short weight in ice, Sam Kaplan was fined $10 on each charge in Dorchester court today.

FORD LED WHEN PRICE WENT UP

Figures Show He Added 44 Per Cent. in Three Years; Maxwell Up 40

The Boston News Bureau says today:

Our Detroit correspondent wires: Comparisons of prices and increases issued by a Detroit automobile manufacturer shed light on the action of the Ford Motor Company last week in making the initial reduction.

The schedule shows that between August, 1915, and August 20, 1920, the price of the Ford car had been increased $200 or 44 per cent, or more than any other car. The schedule follows: Buick $520, or 32 per cent.; Cadillac $970, or 33 per cent.; Chandler $300, or 19 per cent.; Chevrolet $135, or 19 per cent.; Cole $835, or 27 per cent.; Dodge $300, or 30 per cent.; Dort $160, or 17 per cent.; Ford $200, or 44 per cent.; Franklin $745, or 33 per cent.; Hupp $325, or 25 per cent.; Liberty $600, or 34 per cent.; Maxwell $330, or 40 per cent.; Mitchell $400, or 30 per cent.; Nash $380, or 27 per cent.; Oakland $345, or 33 per cent.; Oldsmobile $255, or 20 per cent.; Paige $275, or 20 per cent.

SEVERAL STAY AT OLD PRICE.

The Packard Motor Car Company announced the prices of that car will not be changed and that purchasers would be guaranteed against any reduction before July 1, 1921. Other factories that have announced that prices will not be changed are Dodge, Dort, Reo, Saxon, Apperson and R. & V. Knight and the entire General Motors group, including Cadillac, Buick, Chevrolet, Oakland, Oldsmobile and Scripps-Booth.

King Motor Car Company of Detroit contemplates no reduction in price of its cars. They guarantee to refund to buyer the amount of any reduction that may be made before March 1, 1921.

DODGE WON'T CUT.

H. D. Day, district representative in Boston for Dodge Brothers, says there will be no reduction from present prices of Dodge cars. He adds: "Dodge Brothers will never do a single thing to hurt any owner or dealer. On the contrary, their car has never been sold because of its price, but because of the kind and true value of the car Dodge Brothers have always built, which alone is responsible for the tremendous volume of business enjoyed by them. Dodge Brothers' prices have never been influenced by price fluctuations of any other make of cars."

Vice-President Halliday of the Mack Truck Company says: "The Mack Truck Company contemplates no reduction in prices."

Chandler Motor Company officials announce a cut of $200 on all models of Chandler automobiles from current list prices.

Cleveland Autoobile Company announces a cut of $150 from list prices on all Clevelands.

MAXWELL DOWN TO $995.

Walter P. Chrysler, chairman of reorganization committee of Maxwell and Chalmers companies, has announced a material reduction in prices of Maxwell and Chalmers cars. Maxwell touring car and roadster will sell for $995 at factory; former price was $1,155 for each model.

Maxwell sedan is reduced from $1,895 to $1,695, coupe from $1,795 to $1,595, and Maxwell trucks are reduced in price in average of $140 each.

Chalmers open type cars and chassis have been reduced $150 each and Chalmers closed cars a lesser amount.

Paige-Detroit Motor Company has reduced quarterly dividends on common stock from 3 per cent. to 1 per cent. Common stock is $10 par. This is the first important motor company to reduce dividends. Grant Motor recently omitted its common declaration.

300 CUSTOM TAILORS OF BOSTON GO ON STRIKE

Three hundred men and women members of Local No. 36, Ladies' Tailors' and Dressmakers' Union, employed in the main by Tremont street and Boylston street establishments, went on strike today to enforce their demand for a new scale of wages.

Vice-President Posen and Organizer A. Snyder of the international body, said that the strike was not ordered until it became apparent that nothing could be gained in any other way.

The proposed scale calls for a minimum of $50 for tailors, $45 for alteration workers, $40 for male helpers and $35 for female helpers. The union, Snyder said, has the support of seven other locals in Boston.

Seven hundred dressmakers, he declared, are ready to come out in sympathy. The strikers when at work are employed exclusively on women's custom-made apparel.

POLICE CAPTAINS NOW WEAR GOLD BADGES

The Boston police captains at a meeting in the office of the police superintendent were given gold-plated badges to be worn instead of the silver-plated emblems that have been the recognized badge of the captains since the establishment of the police department. The new badge will be worn for the first time on a public occasion during the police parade, which will be held on October 12.

HOTEL AND RESTAURANT WORKERS TALK OF STRIKE

Hotel and restaurant workers today were invited to meetings of the International Federation of Workers in Hotel, Restaurant, Lunchroom, Club and Catering Industries. Plans for a strike were expected to be discussed. The meetings will be tonight at 8:30 and 12:30 at No. 724 Washington street. John J. Kearney, business agent of Local 34, of the Waiters' Union, was attacked in circulars calling the meeting.

LAWRENCE NURSES MAY SUE FOR BACK PAY

Lawrence, Sept. 29.—Mayor White refuses to allow the raise to city nurses, whose pay was recently advanced, to be retroactive to May 1. If this plan is carried out Chairman Murphy of the Board of Health said he would advise the nurses to sue the city.

Girl to Preach Where Ministers Won't Stay

Lenox, Sept. 29.—Announcement was made today of the approaching ordination of the first woman ever called as pastor of a church in Berkshire County. On Friday, in the little town of New Boston, remote from railroad and miles away from trolley, an ecclesiastical council will be held by the Congregational Church to present its pastor, Miss Charlotte Brown, for ordination.

The Rev. Miss Brown's installation means that New Boston has solved its "pastor problem." For several years the town has been able to hold a preacher only a few months. The best salary that could be paid was not big enough to attract married men. Single men came along in procession, fell in love with New Boston girls, the prettiest in Berkshire, some say—and hurried off to larger pews and larger incomes.

Miss Brown is a native of Ohio. She was graduated twelve years ago from the Hartford School of Religious Pedagogy and for nine years has been director of religious education for the Lake Avenue Baptist Church of Rochester, N. Y.

When it was suggested today to one of the older members of the New Boston congregation that there is no law against a woman pastor taking a husband, the veteran said:

"We realize that, but we figure that if one of our young men marries the preacher she'll be all the more likely to settle down with us."

WORLD'S LARGEST RADIO STATION IS OPENED

Nauen, Germany, Sept. 29.—The world's largest wireless station was opened here today with elaborate ceremonies.

A special train brought 250 officials from Berlin, including President Ebert, members of the cabinet and foreign envoys, among them Elis L. Dresel, the United States commissioner. President Ebert filed the first message.

The radio plant has power to send messages nearly half way round the world. German officials in their speeches, pointed out that Germany is now free from any foreign censorship, as messages of German origin can now be sent direct to practically every country.

GUARD VATICAN AGAINST 'REDS'

Report That Committee Planned to Seize Lateran Palace

By International News Service.

Rome, Sept. 29.—Armed guards are on duty at the Vatican today. Ball cartridges have been issued to the gendarmes and the Swiss guards, and the officers have been ordered to be on the alert if there are any further industrial riots or if any attempt is made to invade the Vatican premises.

These precautionary measures were taken as the result of reports that Communists planned to occupy the Lateran palace, the property of the Holy See.

These reports were current during the recent occupations of palatial estates by peasants and homeless workers. The official organ of the Vatican, Osservatore Romano, reminds the Italian government that under the law of Guarantees the government is responsible for the safety of the Pope and the protection of all pontifical property.

The newspaper declares that "If the crowd is impregnated with Bolshevism it cannot be expected to refrain from invasion of the Vatican premises."

The newspaper advises the government "To take steps if it would avoid a world scandal." It is understood that Premier Giolitti has assured the papal secretary of state that every precaution will be taken to assure the Vatican adequate protection.

FIREMEN'S SIDE LINE CUT OFF

Somerville Chief Forbids Men Taking in Auto Repair Work During Duty Hours

Somerville firemen, a few of whom have been working as public repair men and using the firehouses adjoining streets as automobile repair shops, received a jolt with the issuance of a general order by Chief Engineer Sewall M. Rich that no more work can be done on automobiles during duty hours.

Recently repair work at a large Somerville garage had fallen off so that the proprietors made an investigation and learned that a lot of the work that had previously been done by them was being performed in the yards and streets adjoining three of the eight firehouses in the city.

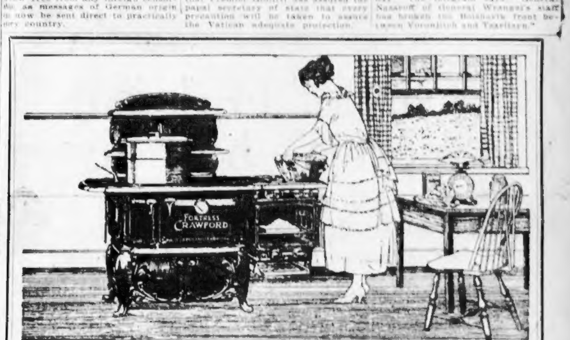

Politicians and city officials had their private flivvers looked over by the firemen and put into condition. The jobs it is said were done at cut rates.

A roofer in the western section of the city is contemplating registering a protest against firemen roofing houses in their time off, while considerable talk has been made about another officer in the department who has been about the city with a plasterer's wagon, doing odd jobs on stores and tenement houses, and, according to one city official, this officer in the fire department worked on a job at the Somerville City Hall.

Several business men have said they do not object to firemen roofing their own houses or buildings of their brother firemen or doing plastering jobs for themselves or other firemen, but they do protest against them going out and competing with day labor.

GEN. WRANGEL'S FORCES SMASH SOVIET LINE

Copenhagen, Sept. 29.—General Wrangel's anti-Bolshevik forces have broken the front of the Red army, according to an unofficial dispatch printed by the newspaper Vidende today. The telegram says: "General Nasaroff of General Wrangel's staff has broken the Bolshevik front between Voronitch and Tsaritsyn."

"My Crawford Is Really Two Ranges in One"

"AND I can use them together or separately, just as I wish. See what a nice gas stove I have at the end of the coal range, where it is most convenient! Five gas burners on the top, a great roomy oven, with a rack, and a folding broiler below the oven!

"But much as I like the gas stove I simply couldn't get along without the coal range. Right now, you see, I've got my cold pack canner on the coal stove, while my jelly is boiling on the gas and the sugar is warming in the oven. And there's bread baking in the coal oven, too. That helps me save fuel—and I get a lot more done in a day.

"THERE'S another splendid thing about my coal range—the Crawford Single Damper. I set the knob at 'Bake,' 'Check,' or 'Kindle'—which are plainly marked on the stove top—and I can always be sure my oven will be just the right temperature. This damper also regulates the heat under the top griddles.

"And here, too, is another reason why I'm so fond of my Crawford. Tucked in behind those doors in the stove base is a pair of interchangeable hods. As soon as I use up the coal in the one on the right, I will take out the one on the left which has been catching the ashes from the chute, and move the other over into its place. Then I can carry the one with ashes down cellar, empty it and bring it back full of coal—all in one trip.

"IT'S the neatest, cleanest way of taking care of the ashes, and so much easier to handle than the old-fashioned ash-pan. And I like to be able to keep my coal hod out of sight—it makes the kitchen so much tidier.

"These twin hods are an exclusive feature of the Crawford Range—and so is the Single Damper. Every day I discover new Crawford advantages. One of them is its economy—I figure that the fuel it saves will just about pay for my range."

SEEK HEARING FOR HAYWOOD

"Free Speech" League Asks Injunction to Permit National Theatre Meeting

Application is to be made to Judge Lawlor in the equity session of the Superior Court, to permit William D. Haywood, some times known as "Big Bill" Haywood, to speak at the National Theatre tomorrow night.

Although this application for a hearing on an injunction to restrain the owners of the theatre from interfering with the proposed speech was filed by the New England Civil Liberties League, that organization disclaimed any connection with the meeting as originally planned. It enters the case in behalf of its triad of "free speech, free assembly and free press," its officials state.

Arrangements for the meeting were made by Minnie Federman, Fred Jacobs and M. Aylook, who, it is said, deposited $150 part payment for the use of the theatre.

The theatre is now owned by the National Amusement company, of which H. L. Corbett is manager, and Charles W. Growell president. On October 1, however, the Keith interests, represented by Robert Larsen, who have purchased the structure, are to take possession.

John S. Codman, chairman of the New England Civil Liberties Committee, stated that members of the committee who had hired the place appealed to his organization for full play.

The theatre people explained they had been visited by a representative of the Department of Justice, who said the idea of the meeting was not pleasing to the department. Mr. Codman said he was told also that Lorsen requested the meeting be stopped.

Codman conferred with Mrs. Horace A. Davis of Brookline, secretary of his committee, H. L. Rotzel, field worker, and Morris Kellett, attorney, who applied for the injunction hearing.

BELIEVE CHINA WILL TREAT WITH SOVIETS

Pekin, Sept. 29.—There are indications that the Chinese government is preparing to enter negotiations with the Russian soviet government at Moscow. The old Russian imperial flag—the standard of the Czarist regime—which was kept flying over the Russian legation, has been hauled down.

Wilson May Resign if Harding Wins

Washington, Sept. 27. — The possibility of President Wilson resigning immediately in the event of Senator Harding's election is being seriously considered by many of the highest administration officials and closest friends of the President.

It is learned on the highest authority that advisers of the President have conveyed to him suggestions of the most friendly character that it would be preferable to have Harding receive the Presidency from the hands of Vice-President Marshall than from the President himself, the strongest of these reasons being that by this course the President would save himself from having to turn over his office to one who is not only of the opposite political faith, but a bitter opponent of the President's League of Nations as well.

HARDING AFRAID, DECLARES COX

Says Rival Dare Not Offer Only Alternative to the League of Nations

By International News Service.

En route with Governor Cox, St. Joseph, Mo., Sept. 29.—Continuing his denunciation of Senator Harding's failure to offer "a definite plan in substitution for the League of Nations," Governor James M. Cox, in a speech here today, asserted that the spirits of ten million men who died in the great war still haunt the watchman who, in the critical hour, has nothing better to suggest than to go back and do it all over again.

Senator Harding, the Governor said, "has no definite plan to offer because he does not dare suggest to the mothers of America the only alternative there is namely, a return to international normalcy of 1914, with autocratic monarchs and sudden ultimatums and secret diplomacy and burdensome armaments."

"All other plans the Governor said, have been tried and failed. Because Senator Harding knows this, Cox declared, he has better judgment than to suggest other plans now.

"The inter-parliamentary union," Cox continued, "held international conferences for a decade before the great war. The Hague court had been functioning for more than fifteen years, but both were impotent to prevent or even postpone the catastrophe. And as for the great alliances, instead of preventing war by a balance of power they provoked war by a multiplication of arms and of munitions; of battle fleets and standing armies."

READ AMERICAN FOR WORLD SERIES "DOPE"

The World's Series starts on next Tuesday. Every fan, young and old, in the country is watching the newspapers for the latest "dope" on the outcome. As usual, the Boston American is going to have the largest and most prominent staff of writers on the games to give the readers the latest and best news from every angle. American staff men like sporting Editor Tillooly, Assistant Editor Jack Conway, and the same Nick Flatley whose articles, under his name, have furnished baseball followers with the best stories throughout the season.

Then there will be Damon Runyon, the "sport humorist," Hugh Fullerton, the famous expert, whose analysis of men and teams is accepted as final the country over. In addition, Jack Vleeck, the well-known International News sport writer, "Bugs" Baer with his paragraphical fun, and Tad with cartoons and opinions in type. Where can you get a finer array of sport writers in the world? Nowhere. They will all be ready to give the American readers the best of it from the moment the "umps" first yell "Play Ball!"

Firemen Rescue Cat From Tree Top

Stamford, Conn., Sept. 29.—The Stamford fire department was called out today to rescue a cat chased by a dog.

The cat had taken refuge on the top of a tree in Central Park, and it refused to come down of its own accord.

It had been there two days when the fire department was called upon to rescue it.

CANADA'S FLOUR FLOODS BOSTON

Public, However, Is Not Getting Benefit of Cheaper Price Due to Exchange Rate

Boston wholesale flour dealers and agents of Western flour mills declare that the difference in exchange between Canada and the United States enables the Canadian millers to put flour into Boston a dollar cheaper than the Western millers can, and still make a larger percentage of profit than American mills selling at the higher price.

Boston is now being flooded with Canadian flour at prices ranging from 25 cents to $1 per barrel cheaper than American flour. This is on the grades used by housewives who bake their own loaves. The flour used by bakers is sold by the Canadian millers on a closer margin, but even the smallest margin means a great deal to concerns that buy by the carload.

The local wholesale flour merchants declare that they cannot hope to compete with the Canadians and will have to remain out of the market as long as the Canadian supply holds out.

Unfortunately the public is not being let in on this good thing. The Boston retailer isn't built that way. He sells the Canadian flour on the American price basis.

As the lamented "Boss" Tweed so aptly remarked:

"What are you going to do about it?"

Helen Wainwright, 14-year-old swimming-wonder—member of the Olympia Team. Helen won her first swimming prize when she was eight and since then has captured 28 medals and cups. Her home is at 51st St. and Jackson Ave., Corona, L. I.

Girl of 14 defeats America's best divers

Mother of Helen Wainwright tells how her daughter won national honors. Gives interesting facts on building health and bathing

THIS summer a pretty little slip of a girl defeated all the best women divers in America.

At the Olympic Trials Helen Wainwright, only 14 years old, was chosen to represent the United States at Antwerp.

"Ever since Helen was very small," said Mrs. Wainwright recently, "I have encouraged her to swim and dive. And one of the first things I taught her was to follow the simple rules of health.

"We discovered long ago, for instance, that bathing at home, if properly done with the right soap, is a real way to build up vigorous health.

"All our family have used Lifebuoy Health Soap because its soft, creamy lather leaves the whole body stimulated and the skin ruddy and glowing with health."

Like the Wainwrights, there are 2,000,000 other families in America who are building up health and strength every day by correct bathing. They know how the big, generous lather, and the mild antiseptic of Lifebuoy Soap invigorate the skin and tone up the whole system.

Doctors have found that an inactive, "lazy" skin is a common cause of discomfort and lowered health.

Why a "lazy" skin is a drag on health

We have all wondered why some people are always complaining about the weather.

On warm days they feel hot and uncomfortable. And in the slightest draft they begin to sneeze and catch cold.

A common cause of these troubles—and of many others—is an inactive, "lazy" skin.

The tiny muscles of the pores and glands in the skin are just like all our other muscles. Without proper exercise they become weak and flabby.

Then the whole skin grows "lazy." It cannot do its work—cannot give the body full protection against changes in temperature. We suffer too much from the heat, and catch cold too easily. In addition, a "lazy" skin is always exposed to rashes and eruptions. The vitality of the whole body is lowered.

Keep your skin active—glowing with health

Doctors have found that proper bathing will easily restore health and vigor to a "lazy" skin.

Already many people have found a simple, pleasant way to keep the skin healthy and active—really to build up health through bathing.

A bath in warm water with the rich, bubbling lather of Lifebuoy Health Soap—then a cold sponge-off and a vigorous rub-down—

Try this yourself—see how it leaves you "tingling" all over. It gives your skin just the exercise it needs. That means a clearer, fresher complexion, too—the radiant, "outdoor" look that everyone admires.

Notice, too, the clean, wholesome odor of the Health Soap. It contains a special ingredient—a mild antiseptic, that purifies and stimulates the skin. The odor tells you why Lifebuoy is known as the "Health Soap."

Start today to make every bath help build health for your whole body. Take a cake of Lifebuoy home with you. It is on sale at grocers, department and drug stores. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP

Ordinary Soap — Lifebuoy Health Soap

50% more lather than ordinary soap

Rich, generous lather—half again as much as with ordinary toilet soaps. That's the result of the Red Palm oils in Lifebuoy.

Try the simple test shown above. See for yourself that Lifebuoy forms at least 50% more lather.

Notice, too, the clean, wholesome odor of the Lifebuoy antiseptic. The generous lather carries this cleansing antiseptic right down into the pores of the skin. That is why Lifebuoy keeps your whole skin glowing with health.

For the face and hands

More than any other parts of the body, the face and hands are exposed to dirt and grime. They especially require a soap that forms a heavy, creamy lather, which will loosen the dirt and carry it away.

Try Lifebuoy the next time you wash your face and hands. Notice how much cleaner—how much cooler —the rich Lifebuoy lather makes them feel than ever before.

Watch your skin improve

$200 in prizes for letters from Lifebuoy users

Every day we are hearing from more and more Lifebuoy users who are doing remarkable and unusual things. If you or your family are among the 2,000,000 users of Lifebuoy, and have won a prize, or done something interesting, write us a letter describing it and telling why you like Lifebuoy.

We will award prizes of $100.00, $75.00 and $25.00 for the three best letters. Only condition is that you must have been a Lifebuoy user before August 10th, the first day of this contest. Mail your letter on or before October 31st to Dept. G 18, Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

BOY ATHLETE IS STRANGLED

Apparatus Used to Strengthen Neck Muscles Hangs New Jersey Youth

Orange, N. J., Sept. 29.—Choked to death by an apparatus he had set up to strengthen his neck muscles in order to be able to make the Orange, N. J. High School football team, the body of Hendrick C. Ware, jr., aged sixteen, was found in his home here.

The lad was an athlete, but barred from the team because of an affection of one of his ears. He rigged up an apparatus to build up the neck muscles. It consisted of a leather strap, which he fastened around the neck. To the strap was attached a rope, which passed through a pulley held by a hook in the ceiling. By means of the rope he could lift and lower himself by the neck.

His limp body was found hanging by the rope from the pulley in the ceiling.

6,000 ALIENS PER DAY JAMMING ELLIS ISLAND

Washington, Sept. 29.—Louis F. Post, Assistant Secretary of Labor, conferred with officials of the State department here regarding means to relieve the flood of immigration now arriving in New York.

Mr. Post described the situation at Ellis Island as "very bad." Aliens are arriving at the rate of about 6,000 a day he said. Mr. Post has asked the Shipping Board for permission to use the Leviathan and other liners now out of commission as temporary quarters for the new arrivals.

Is Marriage a Success?

Is marriage a success.

If you could read all the piles of letters that have come in from those who earnestly discuss that problem you would realize what a puzzle marriage was a big puzzle as life itself.

The great majority of the writers, from their own careers, find marriage a success—success being to them happiness, contentment. And they offer for the benefit of others their formula by which the rocks of disappointment may be avoided.

They are frank and sincere in their desire to show what will make marriage better and happier.

There comes one letter from a husband signed "Happy Days," well named. Read his story of how he and his wife, with their children, made their marriage a success. The light of gayety that runs through their whole marital existence should offer a beacon of hope for those poor, disappointed souls who have not been able to base their lives on patience and forbearance.

In some of the other letters you see the bitter tone of those who did not find what they expected. But they are philosophically hopeful that experience may be a salutary guide to others.

THE MARRIAGE EDITOR.

ANY HAPPIER HUSBAND

To the Marriage Editor:

I married fifteen years ago, when I was twenty, my wife seventeen, and I wouldn't be single for any money. We have seen some ups and downs, but we should care, so long as we are together. We have three children, two girls and a boy, and although as a bookkeeper, I make only $10 a week, I have the most wonderful manager possible in Mrs. Cook? Oh, boy! She can't be beat. True, there are nights when I come home, and the wife's garden, and the wash, and a thousand and one other things that go along with housework. Can I blame her for getting just a bit grouchy once in a while? Certainly not.

Then there's the pleasure of treating her to a box of candy once in a while, and ice cream for the kids, and oh, how the kids enjoy it, and how I enjoy seeing them enjoy themselves.

Then on Saturday nights the wife and I leave the kiddies home and go out and do our shopping for Sunday's dinner, then we look into the movies for an hour or so, then an ice cream soda, and we're as happy as two kids, so long as the children and ourselves have good health, and I make enough to squeeze by on.

You know when you're young and life seems fine, and you're sitting in the parlor or on the porch with your best girl, and the moon is shining, and it's a peach of a night, and the girl looks divine, and you feel like a hero, and you know that your sweetheart when you get married will never try to boss you. See how she leans her head on your shoulder. Life is joyous and divine.

Time drifts on, you get married, babies come, wifey's sick, no diner ready, babies cross. Then comes the difference. You ask yourself: "What the devil did I ever get married for?" YES, BUT WHAT ABOUT WIFEY? Is she getting any more out of it than you? Do you remember then, the night, the moon, the porch and the girl, how strong you felt? And the kiddies didn't ask you to bring them into the world. NO, boy, you've had your fun, be a man and pay your part.

Don't be a grouch—get busy, make wifey something nice and hot; wonderful how quickly you will learn and keep cheery, and when the kiddies grow up to ten and twelve and fourteen years, it's wonderful how proud you are of them. You feel within yourself that, if you are not richly endowed with this world's goods, at least you're a man. God bless the ladies.

HAPPY DAYS.

FROM A BACHELOR.

To the Marriage Editor:

R. F. D., Back Bay, states, "Experience will predominate in most cases." I coincide with R. F. D. I have satisfied myself that marriage is a success, for where there is no success, there is no marriage. I have traveled, witnessed many failures, but know of more successes. I am getting near forty, guess I'm "on the shelf," but still I am happy to say I envy those friends of mine who "got the girl." Let the man get the girl who can do as Mother did, sew, cook, etc., and not set her mind upon an apartment with janitor service, too, by gosh! Wish I had met the girl—and long enough in one place, only reason—and I am convinced all would be well. Poor Jiggs gets it in the neck, but yet he has some consolation, for Maggie loves him at any rate, as we can see when Jiggs pleases her. Success implies love; failure, ignoble motives.

Noddle Island. J. P. A.

MARRIAGE IS LIKE LIFE.

Marriage Editor:

Replying to your suggested question, "Is marriage a success?" I venture to ask, is life a success? Life's experience may be a salutary guide to others.

MRS. BERGDOLL FOUND GUILTY

Aided Sons to Escape Military Service. Philadelphia Jury Decides

Philadelphia, Pa., Sept. 29.—Guilty was the verdict returned by a jury in Federal court on three indictments charging Mrs. Emma C. Bergdoll with conspiracy in aiding her sons, Erwin and Grover, to dodge military service.

Charles Braun, was found guilty on three indictments; former Magistrate Romig, guilty on two indictments and Albert E. Mitchell and Henry Schuh, guilty on one indictment each.

Attorneys representing the defendants said motion for a new trial would be filed. Judge Dickinson thereupon held each of the defendants under $10,000 bail.

RAILROADS CANNOT LEND COAL CARS TO FRIENDS

Washington, Sept. 29.—Railroad companies will not be enabled to divert coal cars for the use of themselves or their friends this Winter, according to an order issued by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Private cars and those placed for coalroad fuel loading will be designated as "assigned" cars. But the railway officials may not take these cars for their own fuel nor count them against a mine's pro-rate of car supply unless the road has contracted for the entire entire output, for at least six consecutive months.

HEALTH FIGHT IN SCHOOLS FIRST

Attack Tuberculosis in the Susceptible Stages, Says Dr. C. H. Keene

Manchester, N. H., Sept. 29.—Dr. Charles H. Keene of Boston, speaking at the opening session here of the New England Tuberculosis Conference, today argued that tuberculosis must be attacked through the schools and that school physicians should be paid more money, that there may be secured better men who will be more interested professionally. He said that physical examinations should be given school children annually and that such examinations should include janitors and teachers.

Noted physicians of New England gathered here to attend the conference, which will have a two-day session. Dr. Charles Duncan of Concord, N. H., of the State Board of Health, president of the conference, opened the meeting.

"Experts in tuberculosis tell us that the disease is usually acquired in childhood," said Dr. Keene, who represents the New England division of the American Red Cross. "They declare that bovine tuberculosis is almost always acquired at that time. This is necessarily so, as it is then that the diet is wholly of milk. What is your town, your city, your health officer doing to educate mothers regarding the essential need of nursing their own babies rather than feeding them from the bottle? What are you doing to bring about the elimination of tuberculosis cattle, or even to require the pasturization of milk?

"Tuberculosis thrives most under conditions of bad air, lack of sunshine, lack of proper food and overwork, or what amounts to the same thing, lack of sufficient rest. We must spread the gospel of getting our children outdoors early and often for God's great free tonic of fresh air and sunshine.

"We must hammer home to our communities the fact that coffee and dry bread is not a fit meal for anyone, much less for children, but that they must have cereals, cream, butter, eggs, fresh fruit and vegetables. We must spread the information that the wild West or Bowery tragedy moving picture until 10 or 11 o'clock at night is not the place for him, but that he should be at home and in bed in order to get ten or more hours of sleep that he needs each night for rest, recuperation, growth and mental poise and energy.

AMERICAN'S EXPERTS BEST IN WORLD SERIES

Want to know what goes on during the World's Series games? Read the the stories in the Boston American. The whole "dope" will be there, written from a dozen different angles, by the largest and most celebrated staff of sport writers in America—that means the world, in baseball. Starting with Sporting Editor Gillooly, we have Jack Conway, Nick Flatley, Damon Runyon, Hugh Fullerton, Jack Veneck, "Buggy" Baer for the stories, and the great "Tad" T. A. Dorgan, for the cartoons. No use to introduce them. All New England knows them and their work. If you can't go to the World's Series games the next best thing is to read the story of each day's game, play by play—in the American.

HOUSTON SAYS DUPLICATE LIBERTIES RECOVERED

Washington, Sept. 29.—Secretary of the Treasury Houston admitted today the truth of the charges made by former Assistant Registrar John W. McCarter to the effect that duplications in the serial numbers of Liberty bonds occurred and that the duplicate bonds were issued to the public. He denied, however, that the government lost anything on the transaction. The duplicate bonds have been recovered, he said.

NURSE HELD AS BIGAMIST FACED BY TWO HUSBANDS

New York, Sept. 29.—Annie Levine, aged forty, a nurse, faced two husbands when she was arraigned in Essex Market Court here. She was held in $2,500 bail for bigamy by Magistrate Nolan for a hearing later in the week.

Max Feigenbaum, a peddler, came forward to say that he married her July 9, 1918, and Harry Bakal, a furrier, told of wedding her July 1, 1919. Attorneys for the complainants let it be known that two other husbands had been located up to date.

SEIZED PASSOVER WINE RETURNED TO OWNERS

Springfield, Sept. 29.—One hundred gallons of Passover wine seized by Federal agents from the firm of Lipshitz & Kravitz has been returned to its owners. The original seizure, made in a daylight raid last Spring consisted of 150 gallons. It was taken to police headquarters and later to a storage plant. A legal fight has been in progress since. Meanwhile the wine fermented and burst many of the jugs and as a result Lipshitz & Kravitz are short fifty gallons.

RUN DOWN BY AUTO, 2 GIRLS HELD IN HOSPITAL

An automobile owned and operated by John Minsky of No. 12 Harrishof street, Roxbury, ran down Helen G. Cawlen, twenty, of No. 32 Hendry street, Dorchester, and Helen B. Sullivan, nineteen, of 5 Galena street, Roxbury, at Washington and Eliot streets. At the City Hospital the Cawlen girl was found to be suffering from contusions and abrasions of the back and the Sullivan girl from contusions of the left ankle. Both were held for treatment.

TARDY TAX PAYERS AT WESTFIELD FACE ARREST

Westfield, Sept. 29.—Arrests of delinquent property and poll tax payers are to be made here if the taxes owed do not pay their bills for the current year. Notice to this effect has already served its purpose to a certain extent, as nearly 95 per cent. of this year's poll tax bills have been paid.

The simplicity of good taste
—in Filene's for every purse

THE Filene store is being highly praised more than ever today because of the noteworthy lack of overtrimming in its fashions. Those who want the simplest taste, which is always the best, find this the store to get it.

In accomplishing this, our chiefest difficulty has been in producing INEXPENSIVE clothes that are simple! It would seem easy. It has been difficult.

Our success in this line means that no longer need one of modest means be "over-dressed"—a low price paid for clothes no longer need mean "cheapness."

And we are glad and proud that this is so!

Women's Bolivia coats, $65

THE gathered back and large shawl collar suit the matronly figure admirably. Hand finished and silk lined. Brown, navy blue, and taupe.

Many women have been buying just this sort of Bolivia coats for five years.

Women's Bolivia wraps, $57.50

THERE is probably no outer garment more graceful for a woman than a wrap such as this. Note that this is an unusually low price for a Bolivia wrap, $57.50.

Women's broadcloth suits, $45

AN easy-to-wear style, with a slightly longer waistline. When cooler weather comes the collar can button up warmly. Peau de cygne linings in the solid colors women prefer to the figured. Brown, navy blue, reindeer. Sizes 34 to 42.

Women's tailored oxford gray suits, $55

SKILFULLY tailored, to mould the figure in long, easy lines. This is the type of suit five women out of ten ask for—one that keeps its good lines several seasons.

Women's topcoats of imported mixtures, cravenette-proofed, $35

Remember you can get a good suit or coat for $35

Misses' Bolivia wraps, $65

PROBABLY the most practical garment one could buy—enough like a coat for day wear; enough like a wrap for evening wear. Brown and reindeer shades, silk lined all through. This same wrap in velours, $45.

Misses' velours coats, $45

SILK cable stitching, ball buttons, and arrowheads are three good mediums used to make a pretty back in these coats. Lined throughout with peau de cygne in colors to match—negre brown and purple.

Misses' fur-trimmed suits, $50

A ROCK-BOTTOM price this season for suits with fur. Opossum trims; navy blue those made of velours; nutria collars on the brown.

DAY HONORED BY AUTO MEN

Popular Dodge Man Presented Gift at Dinner in Copley Square Hotel

In honor of H. D. Day, district representative in Boston for Dodge Brothers since 1914, dealers from all the principal centres of New England were present last evening at the Copley Square Hotel for a complimentary dinner.

Mr. Day was one of the first district representatives selected by Dodge Brothers. He was assigned to Boston and was instrumental in the establishment of the Boston franchise with the Henshaw Motor Company.

DAY INCREASES SALES.

As Dodge Brothers have grown, until they have attained rank among the first three motor car manufacturers in the United States, Mr. Day has extended, broadened and strengthened the sales organization in this part of the country until it is regarded as one of the best. Previous to joining the Dodge Brothers organization, Mr. Day was general sales manager of the E. T. Burrowes Co., manufacturer of Burrowes rustless screens.

A beautiful gift was presented by the New England dealers to Mr. Day, who in acknowledging it, said in part:

"It certainly shows close co-operation and good fellowship when a large body of dealers from all over New England will gather for a meeting of this kind. While business is tabooed here tonight, I feel the question of price reduction may be in your mind and I only have to remind you of Dodge Brothers' policy for the answer.

"Dodge Brothers will never do a single thing to hurt any owner or dealer. To the contrary their car never has been sold because of its price, but because of the kind and value of car Dodge Brothers have always built, which alone is responsible for the tremendous volume of business enjoyed by them. Dodge Brothers prices have never been influenced by price fluctuations of any other make of cars. There will be no reduction in the present price of Dodge Brothers cars."

A commendatory telegram was received and read during the meeting from acting General Sales Manager C. W. Matheson.

75 DEALERS PRESENT.

Approximately seventy-five dealers were present at the dinner and in addition to addresses by Mr. Day and others, there was an entertainment of monologues and music.

Among those attending were: P. A. Williams, Jr., Springfield; J. B. Robinson and J. L. Toohey, Lawrence; Stephen Rochette, Lowell; H. B. Vialle, Framingham; G. W. Vialle, Concord; R. J. Spear, Portland; W. P. Hamblin, Providence; J. G. Howe, Middleboro; Stephen D. Peirce, New Bedford; W. C. Spear, Manchester, N. H.; C. H. Leaban, Ware, Mass.; A. D. Hayes, Waltham and representatives of Bramen & Guion & Company, Fort Fairfield, Me.; City Garage & Sales Company, Pittsfield; Clarner Rawson, Fall River; Rhode Island Garage, Westerly; Geb-Chapman, Franklin; Gloucester Auto Sales Company, Gloucester; Hall Motor Car Company, Inc., Holyoke; Hyannis Auto Sales Company, Hyannis; E. P. Weeks Company, Lewiston, Me.; Waterville Motor Company, Waterville, Me.; Twin State Indiana Corporation, Springfield, Vt.; Paul C. McQuaid, Webster, Mass. and Mosher Garage, Brattleboro, Vt.; C. NEW LAFAYETTE HAS WIDE PUBLIC APPEAL

"Since the LaFayette eight-cylinder car made its appearance in Boston there has been an unprecedented amount of keen interest manifested by the motoring public," says C. P. Rockwell, distributor for this section.

"Those who have patiently awaited the advent of this remarkable car, which represents the acme of applied science in motor car engineering, have not only been suitably rewarded but most agreeably surprised, as their enthusiastic remarks of satisfaction have evidenced.

"Those who know the calibre of the men that make up the personnel of the LaFayette Motors Company had faith to believe that they would produce an eight-cylinder motor car, the appearance, quality and performance of which would reflect the superior skill which their past achievements have proven as creators of fine motor cars.

"'Truly wonderful,' is a common expression made by those who have ridden in the LaFayette.

"It certainly possesses a degree of reliability, a resistance to fatigue and depreciation with a range of performance as well as a full measure of ease and comfort which will appeal to the discriminating buyer who is satisfied only with a super-fine motor car."

STEWART MOTOR TRUCK CUT 20 P. C. IN PRICE

The Stewart Motor Truck Company announced a reduction of prices on all models amounting to approximately 20 per cent. In commenting on this action, W. H. West of the Stewart Automobile Company, New England dealers for the Stewart truck, says:

"This action of the factory at Buffalo was taken after a long conference over the telephone Monday. It was decided to make a reduction in price, in keeping with the sentiment of the times, although it means a tremendous loss to the company, and keep the factory open rather than close and throw hundreds out of employment.

"Some factories have closed temporarily until a readjustment could be made, and this course was open to our people, but we decided to take the other course. Personally I feel that the action of the company must be construed as undeniably magnanimous, and holds in employment many who otherwise would be thrown out of a job at a time when such a thing would be crucial. To quote part of the telegram from the factory: 'This reduction means big loss to factory. These prices cannot hold if we are unable to replace material at anticipated lower prices. This action taken to meet sentiment of the times.'"

Mr. Fixit answers questions on Wednesdays. Please do not send stamps for replies to questions, which will be answered only through this column.

Dear Mr. Fixit:

I am expecting to go over the road to Los Angeles in my Buick roadster. I would like to get a road map. Can you tell me where I can obtain a map? Thanking you in advance, I am

G. F. McK.
Newport, R. I.

The Automobile Blue Book, Volume 7, 1920, gives the main trunk lines of the United States, and is especially valuable for transcontinental touring. I believe it would be advisable to get this edition, as it gives all the information necessary, including hotels, garages and other valuable information.

Dear Mr. Fixit:

I have a Model "90" Overland and there is a kind of a clicking noise in the engine. It sounds like it was in the timing gear case. Would you please let me know if a slack generator chain of the timing gears would make this, that is all there is in the case? I notice a good many Overlands have this same noise. You can hear it more when you are idling your engine than any other time. Hoping to hear from you, I am,

J. A. S., Taunton.

P. S. I am getting about 18 miles on a gallon of gasoline with this car. Is that good mileage, if not how can I get my carburetor to get more? It is set so lean now when I start I have to run with the choker pulled out until it gets warmed up.

I hardly think your trouble is a slack generator chain because if the chain was slack it would probably jump and throw the motor out of time. It is probably caused by worn timing gears, and you will have to have these replaced to stop it. You naturally hear it more when idling than when the motor is under load. If you are getting about 18 miles on a gallon of gasoline, would say you are getting very good mileage and better leave your carburetor alone, except a little later when the weather gets colder you will have to give it more gas.

Dear Mr. Fixit: Will you kindly tell me through your column the name and address of concerns that made the bodies for the Amesbury Special Chevrolet in Amesbury.

C. H. C.
Gloucester.

Description. I think they were made in 1915 and 1916. Painted white, green leather upholstering and square sport top. The Clarke Body Company of Amesbury, Mass., built the bodies you refer to.

Dear Mr. Fixit: I have a 1917 Chalmers and I have trouble getting gears to mesh in after starting motor. Before starting motor, gear shift works all right. Also have trouble when running shifting from third or high to second. Sometimes cannot make the shift without stopping. Kindly inform me through your valuable column where to look for the trouble and greatly oblige.

A. N. S.
Brighton.

Your trouble is with the clutch. The plates do not release quickly enough and in all probability it spins. Wash out the clutch with kerosene to clean the grease from the plates and use light cylinder oil in your transmission case, not a grease. Also see if the clutch brake acts properly, and if not increase the tention or renew the facing.

Dear Mr. Fixit: Having noted what valuable advice you have rendered others, I write also to see whether you can solve my problem. I have a 1920 Paige-Larchmont car equipped with a Continental 55 motor. About three weeks ago I noticed the motor developed a distinct knock when pulling on hills. I therefore had the carbon removed and the knock subsided. After running the car less than a thousand miles I noticed the knocking sound again. When I give it much gas on the level road or when pulling on a hill this knock occurs even though the spark is much retarded. Would this be due to the timing gears, cam shaft, crank-shaft or the connecting rod? Thanking you for any information rendered, I am

L. B. W., Boston.

A recent chemical analysis of the gas now used shows that it is better than 50 per cent kerosene, according to information received in this office. This makes a mixture which does not vaporize properly and some of it passes the pistons and rings in the form of raw kerosene which cuts the lubricating film of oil from the bearings and causes undue wear. Your trouble is either a worn connecting rod or wrist pin bearing. Many motorists are discovering the same trouble with various makes of cars, and while the trouble was there before you had the carbon cleaned out, you did not notice it because there was some carbon knock also, and after having the carbon cleaned and new oil put in your crank case it helped matters some. Heavy oil would help somewhat to overcome your difficulty, but undoubtedly it is due to a poorly grade of gas sold.

Dear Mr. Fixit: You have helped a good many. I wonder if you can help me out? My motor has a knock, or rather a thud, that I cannot get rid of. Since I put in new bearings it is worse. If I ground the number two plug it stops. Thanking you I am,

A. J. W., Somerville.

Undoubtedly your trouble is worn wrist pin bearing. You will have to put in a new one to stop the knock.

Dear Mr. Fixit: Which do you think is the better system of ignition, a magnetic (as D. U. Bosch) or a Connecticut coil and rotating distributor, and why? Do you think in a 90 Overland engine better compression and less carbon on piston heads, etc., could be obtained by the use of pistons which take ¼ inch rings instead of 3-16 inch which are now used? If you were fitting new pistons and rings to an engine, do you think it the better way to grind in your rings as well as the pistons? I have read about all of the dope and consider you a wizard on automobile work.

T. D., Lowell.

Newspaper ethics will not allow us to say which is better magneto or battery ignition. You will not need ¼ piston ring in your Overland if you use any good high-compression ring of a 3-16 inch size. Do not grind in your rings as they would not be tight enough to hold the compression if you do so.

PREMIER DEALER IN NEW HOME

Wells Motor Company Now One of Show Places on Commonwealth Avenue

The Wells Motor Company, local distributor for Premier Motor cars, is now located in the new sales and show rooms at No. 842 Commonwealth avenue. A. L. Wells, the local manager, is particularly pleased with the new location and has just reason to be proud of his new quarters.

The sales room is large and commodious, well lighted and when completely finished will be one of the show places of the "avenue."

The Wells Motor Company has one of the largest and best lighted service and parts departments on "Automobile Row." The entrance is on Dummer street, which is in the rear of the salesroom.

SERVICE COMPLETE.

Windows comprise the entire two sides of the service department which permit abundance of light fon working on a car in any part of the floor.

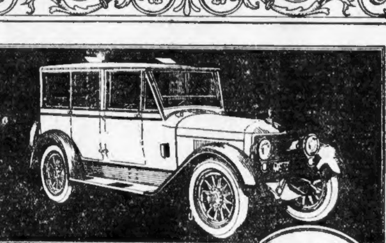

Prompt attention to service is the slogan of the Wells Motor Company, and in speaking of this A. L. Wells says:

"The prestige of the Premier Car in Boston is too well known to require any comment on my part except to say it is and has been the intention of the Wells Motor Company to take absolute care of its owners in regard to service and to furnish courteous and efficient attention to all details.

NO CHANGE IN PRICE.

"In reference to the announcements of various concerns regarding a change in price, we received a wire from our factory, which satisfied us that there would be no change in the price of Premier cars this year as it would be impossible to maintain the Premier standard of quality and reduce our prices under present conditions.

"Our latest models are now on exhibition on our sales room floor, and we anticipate a good active business this Fall."

Premier Model 6-D Seven-Passenger Closed Car

THIS new aluminumized Premier is presented in direct competition with the finer type of European car, on the assumption that it is: More correct in point of engineering; more efficient in operation; more elegantly simple in its appointments; more appealingly beautiful and more socially distinctive.

The new third lever on the quadrant above, as far as the operator is concerned, is all there is to Premier's Cutler-Hammer Magnetic Gear Shift. This advantage is peculiar to Premier—as is also the aluminum motor built to the Premier engineering department's own patented design.

Finally, from a strictly monetary standpoint, it is a far better buy—Premier, completely equipped, sells for less than the price of a European chassis alone.

There will be no change in prices on Premier cars this year.

Now on display at our New Sales and Show Rooms.

BOSTON HAD BIG COAL SUPPLY

Receipts of Anthracite to Sept. 1 Exceeded 1919 Total by 272,847 Tons anthracite, 2,170,277 bituminous and 5,676 tons of gas coal, the latter imported from the Cape Breton mines.

In 1917 the coal receipts in Boston totalled 1,152,576 tons of anthracite and 3,350,483 tons of bituminous. In 1918 anthracite receipts at this port totalled 1,056,292 tons, and the bituminous supply totalled 4,071,739 tons, which constituted an emergency war supply, of which 500,000 tons were carried over to 1919.

The official figures, showing a gain in the supply of all grades of coal at this port this year over last year, would seem to refute the alibi of the coal dealers that scarcity of hard coal, such as is used in family stoves and furnaces, was responsible for present retail prices, which consumers term extortionate.

PRESENT SUPPLY SCANT.

Inquiry shows that the supply of anthracite in many parts of New England is now scant, so scant that the special committee appointed by Governor Coolidge put in force a ration decree limiting deliveries to three tons per family until the shortage has been relieved by fresh shipments from the mines.

Yards and pockets in Greater Boston are almost bare in many instances, especially in the suburbs, but prices are held by housekeepers not to be justified even by the unusual scarcity. A report made by the Commission on the Necessaries of Life to the Legislature in April agrees with this contention of the consumers. This report rebuked the Metropolitan Coal Company and smaller dealers for charging $14.50 a ton in the Spring when overhead expenses and freight tariffs were no heavier than at present, with retail rates soaring all the way from $16 a ton in Boston to $21 a ton in outlying districts.

In its report to the Legislature, the Commission on the Necessaries of Life, then headed by General John H. Sherburne, turned over a stenographic transcript of all the evidence on retail coal prices to Attorney General J. Weston Allen, recommending that he start criminal proceedings if he found that Chapter 298 of the Acts of 1919 had been violated and that coal dealers be licensed if they continued such practices as the inquiry disclosed.

Senator John Jackson Walsh, Democratic nominee for Governor, and father of the act referred to by the commission, said today that there is ample law on the statute books of Massachusetts to prosecute fuel and food profiteers if the authorities care to take advantage of it.

"The remedy for the people against profiteering of every description," added Senator Walsh, "including coal and sugar and other necessities, is in the hands of the Attorney-General of Massachusetts by virtue of the act drawn and put through by me in 1919, and known as the 'Walsh anti-profiteering law,' Chapter 208. If that act were enforced there would be fewer profiteers, big and little, doing business at their present stands."

Coal Prices in Boston and Other Cities

Comparative prices of coal in Boston and other cities are as follows:

	Boston	Lowell	Rochester, N. Y.
Stove	$16	$17.50	$13.40
Nut	$16	$17.50	$13.50
Egg	$16	$17.00	$13.15

Gompers, in Scathing Terms, Attacks European Labor Revolt Movement

By International News Service.

Washington, Sept. 29.—American labor must sever co-operative relations with European labor so long as it continues revolutionary in character. This in substance is the notice served on British labor and the International Federation of Trades Unions by Samuel Gompers in a statement made public today in the Federationist, organ of the American Federation of Labor.

"The American Federation of Labor is not a revolutionary body and has never had any affiliation with any revolution body which would require it to give serious consideration to revolutionary proposals of any kind. While recognizing the need of revolution against autocratic governments, organized labor in this country regards the American government as being essentially democratic.

"The International Federation of Trade Unions takes a position of anarchistic hostility to all governments without discrimination."

NEW TUMBLE IN SUGAR PRICES

Boston Wholesale Market Feels Break at New York; Futures Are Low

Wholesale sugar prices took another tumble in Boston today, despite efforts of the refiners and wholesalers to keep the market up.

Plenty of refined sugar, which sold last week for 14½ cents a pound, was available in carload lots today at 13¾ cents. It was being rapidly bought by retailers.

New York jobbers and big grocery houses were responsible for the flood of cheaper sugar, and the local situation was a reflection of yesterday's break in the raw sugar market in New York.

Afraid that prices would go even lower, jobbers and grocers were trying to unload by underselling Boston wholesalers, who had announced that the market was "stabilized."

Raw sugar, which sold at slightly under 10 cents last week, was available today at 8¾ cents.

"Futurity" sugar for later delivery was selling as low as 7.7 cents, according to the date in the contract.

Three New York refiners today were quoting 14 cents as the wholesale price in new contracts. Notwithstanding this, the two big Boston refineries were refusing to make new contracts and selling under the old contracts at more than 20 cents a pound. Retailers were losing thousands of dollars by being held to these old agreements.

'BRING YOUR LUNCH' DRIVE' PUNISHES RESTAURANTS

The Boston American's Bring-Your-Lunch-From-Home movement, started for the purpose of forcing Boston restaurants to lower their exorbitant prices, has become so popular that business has fallen off in several local lunch rooms.

Employes of a downtown lunch room told a Boston American reporter that the restaurant did less business during the past week than at any equal period since the place was opened several years ago.

"Why everybody is carrying their lunch," said one of the employes. "I never saw anything fall off the way our business has." The proprietor of another large lunch room admitted to a friend of a Boston American reporter that the lunch-from-home idea has hit him hard.

PROVES POWER OF BOYCOTT.

These admissions show the power that lies in the hands of the people if they wish to use it. The American believes that the workers of this city should continue to boycott any restaurant where profiteering prices are still charged. There are many restaurants in Boston that give the public a square deal, but there are many that still charge whatever they believe the people will pay, regardless of cost of food and overhead expenses.

It is not necessary for a person to be an expert in the restaurant business to know that food can be sold for less than 400 to 500 per cent. more than what it costs. Several restaurants in Boston continue to charge that margin of increase above cost, and try to justify their action by explanations that are palpably ridiculous. If persons in other lines of business charged any such percentage above cost for overhead expenses and profit they wouldn't last long.

EDISON CO. FEEDS 600.

The Boston American has never contended that restaurants should not make a fair profit but it maintains that the people should not be exploited as they have been.

Six hundred employes are fed daily by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company of Boston in its industrial restaurant at the Massachusetts avenue plant. O. W. Labdon is the manager of the restaurant. Food is served at cost and the employes fully appreciate what is being done for them. This restaurant saves them many dollars in the course of a month.

The kitchen is one of the best to be found in any industrial plant in New England. All the cooking apparatus is operated by electricity. Even the ice used for keeping food is made by electricity on the premises. The kitchen is as immaculate as the dining room.

TO NOW BRING LUNCH.

These special dinners are served each day, one for 25 cents, another for 30 cents and a third for 35 cents. There are usually from 30 to 35 different articles to choose from each day. The 25 cent special dinner consists of any order marked 15 cents, a small soup, a 5-cent dessert, roll and butter. For milk there is no added charge of three cents. Two cents buys a cup of coffee, tea, cocoa or glass of tonic.

According to Herbert W. Moses, superintendent of the employment bureau, seventy-five of the young women employed at the downtown office on Boylston street carry their lunches and make use of the room placed at their disposal. Because of the increase in the number carrying lunches the room is being remodelled to double the present space. Electric apparatus is operated by electricity. Even the ice used for keeping food is made by electricity on the premises. The kitchen is as immaculate as the dining room.

This, he says, is due to lack of nourishment which causes physical unfitness. On the day before pay-day many of the workers eat less than on other days.

Prices at 'Cost' and Other Restaurants

The Boston American today prints more prices of food in Boston restaurants that will interest citizens.

The first column are the prices charged by the Edison Electric Illuminating Company in its industrial restaurant on Massachusetts avenue. As the company serves food at cost these figures do not contain overhead expense. Compare them with Marston's and T. D. Cook & Co.'s figures:

EARTHQUAKE IN SICILY WRECKS SEVERAL HOUSES

Rome, Sept. 29.—Several houses were destroyed by an earthquake at Canovello, Sicily, said a despatch from Catania.

Mrs. Harding Still Is Loyal to Wilson

Baltimore, Sept. 29.—"Woodrow Wilson is still our President and I will stand for him."

This from Mrs. Harding, wife of the presidential candidate on the Republican ticket, when asked how she felt about the President's foreign policy.

"I have often heard the other senators' wives criticize him," she added. "But I have always felt that as he is my President I will never let anyone say anything against him before me. It would only react on our great country, and we must all unite to protect the interests of America."

NEW YORK HALTS RENT GOUGING

New State Laws, Curbing Landlords and Preventing Evictions, in Effect Oct. 1

Greater Boston tenants will be interested to know what New York State is doing to curb profiteering landlords by the passage of the most drastic laws in the history of the State, which take effect Friday, October 1.

Under these laws a landlord must go into court and prove a raise in rents justifiable before he can put it into effect, while the eviction of tenants is rendered practically impossible under ordinary conditions.

The laws, which were signed by Governor Smith, were passed by an extraordinary session of the Legislature of New York. Hereafter, under their provisions, a landlord can evict a tenant for one of only three reasons.

If the tenant is proved in court to be objectionable; if the landlord actually desires to occupy the premises himself; or if he intends to tear down the building and erect a new one, having filed plans of the new building and showing good faith in his intentions to the satisfaction of the court.

The only way a New York landlord can now obtain an increase in rent is by bringing an action to determine whether the rent he demands is fair and reasonable. The tenant must deposit a month's rent with the court, and if this amount is not sufficient under the decision of the court the tenant must pay the additional amount in five days or the landlord may have a warrant to remove him from the premises.

In case of appeal, the tenant must deposit a month's rent each month pending the final decision.

'SKILLED CREW' FOR HARDING

Tells Kentuckians He Will Gather Together "a Council of Minds"

Ashland, Ky., Sept. 29.—Swinging south and westward today into the pivotal State of Kentucky, Senator Warren G. Harding crossed and recrossed the Ohio River, denouncing "one-man" government. He pledged himself to gather together "a council of minds" to direct the destinies of America.

At Wheeling the Republican candidate was made the central figure of the biggest political celebration he has yet encountered, leaving Wheeling the Harding special travelled to Parkersburg and Huntington, and thence to this city, where the principal speech of the day was made.

Senator Harding argued for the "calling of the ship of state with a full and skilled crew."

"I cannot express myself too strongly," he said, "against one-man government with untrammelled, centralized power. I am against the spirit of encroachment on assumption which may lead one of the greatest of our governments to invade the functions of another.

"If I am elected I mean to do more than to co-operate and co-ordinate with Congress—I am going to consult and converse with the men and women of America.

"I would rather trust the great undercurrent of American thought and conviction than the fellow with the greatest propagandist program ever inaugurated. We must trust the deliberate judgment of our people on affairs at home and abroad. And I mean to learn that judgment."

MAN DESERTED BY BRIDE OF 3 WEEKS WINS DIVORCE

Testimony to the effect that Eugene M. Denham of Lynn was deserted by his bride of three weeks, following a courtship on a boat at Chicago, resulted in the entering of a divorce decree in his name by Judge Quinn of the Salem Court. Mrs. Denham, the husband said, told him she desired her freedom and left him, there being no disagreement. They were married at the State House, Boston, on November 1, 1918.

FALLS 25 FEET, LANDS ON HEAD, UNINJURED

Fall River, Sept. 28.—John Sousa, aged seven, fell a distance of twenty-five feet from the piazza of his home, and after landing on his head on the concrete sidewalk, got upon his feet and went home. So far as can be ascertained he suffered no injury but was taken to a hospital for observation.

PUBLIC WORKS OFFICIAL IN MANCHESTER RESIGNS

Manchester, Sept. 28.—Chairman Arthur L. Frame of the Board of Public Works tendered his resignation to Mayor Verrette, following an attempt of several months to bring about an amicable understanding between the Mayor and the Public Works Department, headed by M. F. Shea, as difficult. Work in the department is practically at a stand still following the laying off of thirty men.

FIREMAN STARTS BLAZES SO HE CAN RUN MACHINE

Nyack, N. Y., Sept. 29.—Charles Garrison, volunteer fireman loved so much to be the first to report a fire and drive the motor engine, that he started seven fires in and around Nyack during the last few months, according to a confession he is supposed to have made to District Attorney Lasow of Rockland County. He was indicted by the county grand jury charged with arson in the third degree. Counsel soon to inquire into his sanity has been appointed.

September's Big Clearance Sale at White's

Two Days Devoted to Closing Out Hundreds of Lots Marked Down

These lots at reduced prices include remnants, discontinued styles, lots in which we have not all sizes and which we cannot now re-order, surplus stocks, and all merchandise, in fact, which for any reason must be disposed of to make room for incoming shipments of Fall and Winter merchandise.

All Day Wednesday—All Day Thursday

Please remember, however, that while some lots are large, others are small. In many cases there are only one or two of a kind. Hence, because of this and because of the big reductions, which make them so attractive, we cannot guarantee that all lots advertised will be here when you call. We will be glad to fill mail orders—but the goods advertised are usually gone before the mail orders arrive.

NOTE—On account of the dates set for this sale the usual "Wednesday and Thursday Specials" will be held this week on Thursday and Friday.

As this sale is held to effect a clearance of marked down lots all sales must be final. No exchanges or refunds. No goods sent C. O. D.

THE GAMBLING BEAST

WHEN GAMBLING CONTROLLED.

This powerful cartoon by the late Homer Davenport, the great cartoonist of the American, leads the chapter devoted to baseball's early struggles against gambling in A. G. Spalding's book "America's National Game."

Mr Davenport here depicts gambling as a hyena, most despicable of beasts.

Mr Davenport drew this cartoon years ago, but the breed of the gambling beast has not changed.

SPORT EDITORIAL

"The Old Roman"

CHARLES A. COMISKEY is the owner of the Chicago White Sox. Mr. Comiskey is an old man, nearing the end of his days. His hair is white, but his heart is strong, and lovers of baseball know him affectionately as "The Old Roman."

Several times in recent years he has been on the verge of Death, but the Umpire of the Greater Game, in his charity, refused to call the old fellow "out," and the flaming spirit of "The Old Roman," flickering faintly in the shadows, broke out into a blaze of renewed vitality.

His hair a shade whiter, his step just a bit more uncertain, "The Old Roman" stepped forth with all his remaining vigor and again devoted himself to the glory and betterment of the game. And a few years ago an enormous stadium of iron and concrete, bearing his name, was erected in Chicago as a monument to the part he had played in the development of the game.

Yesterday eight of the players on his team were indicted by a Grand Jury which has been investigating charges of bribery and corruption in connection with the world's series of last year, and Fate, in its unfathomable workings, has selected "The Old Roman" as the target for its blow.

No man knows how the heart of Charles A. Comiskey writhed in pain when the news of the indictments became known, but every man who is familiar with the career of Charles A. Comiskey knows that "The Old Roman" will say, with a note of resignation and JOY ringing in his voice:

"It is for the good of the game."

COMMERCIAL A. C. TO STAGE FIRST BOXING SHOW TONIGHT

OLD CLUB IN NEW HOME

West End Organization to Stage Bout in Grand Opera House

By JACK CONWAY.

Bob McKirdy will resume action at the Commercial A. C. tonight. The headquarters of the "Home of Action" has been shifted from Bowdoin square to the Grand Opera House. With larger quarters, McKirdy will be able to accommodate many of the fans who formerly found it impossible to get suitable reservations.

Naturally McKirdy has booked a bang-up card for his opening. The final bout of ten rounds will find Tommy McFarland of the North End swapping blows with Mickey Donovan of Brockton. Both of these boys are rugged millers and are sure to put up a lively battle. McFarland has acted as sparring partner for Johnny Wilson for some time and has improved a great deal since joining the camp of the middleweight champion. North Shore fans believe Donovan is one of the best 150-pound boxers in New England and are confident he will finish in front tonight.

Young Goard of the South End will swap blows with Terry Brooks in an eight-round match. This tussle should furnish all kinds of action. Young Bova of the West End and Teddy Murphy of the same district will meet in another eight-round affair.

There will be popular assessments of $1, $1.50 and $2, plus the war tax, for this show. Reservations may be obtained today at No. 28 School street, Room 1[illegible].

Martin Is Given Verdict Over Brown

Vincent (Pepper) Martin is today hurling challenges at Johnny Kilbane, world's featherweight champion, following his victory over Harry (Kid) Brown of Philadelphia after ten torrid rounds of milling at the Armory A. A.'s show at Mechanics Building.

While Martin is conducting a little celebration the gamblers are wearing mourning bands. You can't blame 'em either. The boys "in the know" had made Brown a 10 to 8 and 10 to 4 favorite. And the so-called books cashed. Those fans who are not supposed to know a boxing glove from a chest protector are today trying to outbid each other on such things as shoes, shirts and the other paraphernalia we humans used to wear before the prices went soaring.

'Twas a bang-up battle. Martin just peppered his way to victory. He tossed wallops at his opponent from all angles. Brown was doped to box his way to victory. Martin, however, just wouldn't let Brown box. He kept forcing the issue every minute he was in the ring. And when Vincent thumped his rival the latter felt as weary as certain Chicago White Sox players do today.

It's [illegible] to give one a score these days. So here is the evidence. First round, Brown. Second, third and fourth rounds, Martin. Fifth, sixth and seventh rounds, Brown. Eighth, ninth and tenth rounds, Martin.

Phil [illegible] was referee, while Louis [illegible] and Johnny Brassell acted as judges.

Red [illegible] of Chelsea beat Young Tanns of Cambridge in the semi-final of eight rounds. Tommy Nee of South Boston won over Johnny Clark of Roxbury in eight sessions, while [illegible] Britton of Lynn stopped Dan Mahoney of Cambridge in two sessions.

Jawson and Sacco in Quincy Bout

Matchmaker Tom Goodwin of the Quincy Boxing Club has signed Leo Jawson, Milwaukee lightweight, and Jimmy (Young) Sacco of East Boston, to meet in a twelve round bout at his club tomorrow night. Harry Carlson and Jimmy Frazetti were originally booked to clash at this show. Carlson, however, was obliged to withdraw from the contest on account of an injured nose. Jawson recently made a big hit with Quincy fans by his fine showing against Vincent Martin. Many of the fans were of the opinion that the battle was even. Sacco is out to win the New England lightweight title and believes that the best way to start his campaign would be by handing Jawson a setback.

Arthur MacDonald of Roxbury and Mickey Fitzsimmons of Chelsea will meet in the semi-final.

READ AMERICAN FOR WORLD SERIES "DOPE"

The World's Series starts on next Tuesday. Every fan, young and old in the country is watching the newspapers for the latest "dope" on the outcome. As usual, the Boston American is going to have the largest and most prominent staff of writers at the games to give the readers the latest and best news from every angle. American staff men like Sporting Editor Gilooly, Assistant Editor Jack Conway and the same Nick Flatley whose articles, under his name, have furnished baseball followers with the best stories throughout the season.

Then there will be Damon Runyon, the "sport humorist"; Hugh Fullerton, the famous expert whose analysis of men and teams is accepted as final the country over. In addition Jack Veiock, the well-known International News sport writer; "Bugs" Baer, with his paragraphical fun, and "Tad" with cartoons and opinions in type. Where can you get a finer array of sport writers in the world? Nowhere. They will all be ready to give Boston American readers the best from the moment the "umps" first yell "Play Ball."

HOW THE CENTRE FIELDERS COMPARE.

	Offensive	Defensive	Total
Brooklyn	912	[illegible]	1108
Cleveland	956	212	1168
Chicago	918	204	1122

By HUGH S. FULLERTON

Brooklyn loses ground in the dope when it comes to the comparison of the centre fielders. It loses ground not because the team is weak in that position but because in the nature of this comparison study it is necessary to compare Myers with two of the greatest centre fielders (always excepting Cobb) in the business.

Yet, despite the acknowledged strength of Speaker, who is one of the great [illegible] of all time not only in defensive [illegible] in offensive work, Myers holds [illegible] well.

The fact [illegible] Myers compares so well [illegible] Speaker testifies [illegible] that the Brooklyn [illegible] is a lot better than many of [illegible] have claimed it to be. [illegible] has held its own and in [illegible] superiority over rivals [illegible] seven regular positions [illegible] American League teams are [illegible] everywhere [illegible] superior [illegible] must do so in the eight [illegible] catching and pitching.

FIGURES SURPRISING

I fully [illegible] that the figures would [illegible] and especially amazing [illegible] comparison of [illegible] centre fielders [illegible] the figures [illegible] shows remarkably well. Speaker [illegible] his wonderful ability [illegible] one of his best years at bat [illegible] seventy points advantage [illegible] Brooklyn spectacular fielder.

Here is a tip for some of the World's Series [illegible] any player who starts [illegible] bases in this series is liable to upset the dope entirely.

Comparing Myers with Speaker as a centre fielder perhaps will evoke some merriment among American Leaguers. Speaker, of course, is the leader by a considerable margin. He figures to hit within 10 per cent of his American League gait against the Brooklyn pitchers, except [illegible] Smith, who if he has one of his right days will check him up [illegible] Grimes [illegible] will reduce Speaker's hitting to an extent. Myers, on the other hand, figures to [illegible] and [illegible] as hard as he has [illegible] National League pitchers. [illegible] one who should worry him a great deal is Coveleskie, whose slow ball will cause trouble. If the Cleveland [illegible] any Brooklyn [illegible] Myers and Wheat. Chicago would [illegible] for Myers [illegible] against than Cleveland is.

[illegible] every department Speaker holds a slight advantage.

[illegible] the position where Brooklyn was expected to show inferiority it holds up well [illegible]. In the next article we will examine the right fielders.

"Ouija! What's the good word?"

MY YOUNG sister,
HAS A Ouija board,
AND SHE believes it,
AND TALKS to Noah,
AND I think she talks,
TO HER best fellow,
WHO'S DEAD but doesn't know it,
AND I used to give her,
THE LOUD, rude laugh,
BUT I'M sorry now,
BECAUSE LAST night,
I WAS home alone,
SO I got the board,
AND PUT in a call,
FOR JOHN Barleycorn,
AND OTHER departed spirits,
BUT THE line was busy,
FOR NOTHING happened,
THEN I cheated a little,
AND IT spelled this,
"GRAMMASHOTTA SEVEN,"
SO I shut off quick,
TO HEAD off any,
FURTHER FAMILY scandal,
THEN I stopped to smoke,
A CIGARETTE,
AND AFTER a while,
I CRANKED up weejee,
AND ALL of a sudden,
IT STARTED off,
AND QUICK as a flash,
IT SAID something,

"I [illegible] keeping track of the [illegible]

[illegible] after the marriage [illegible] wants [illegible] Harry."

Stop Herself.

"She's going to [illegible] friend assured [illegible] explain [illegible] be prevented [illegible] away the [illegible] and he had Harry's [illegible] there was [illegible] the woman [illegible] him.

Mrs. Hasdock [illegible] difficulty [illegible] cartridges [illegible] a half hour after Harry had left her room and her first act was to open the drawer and take out the weapon.

Her hand trembled as she tucked the bit of Heliotrope [illegible] the barrel and in a loud [illegible] voice she [illegible] to the landlady.

The latter [illegible] her chamber [illegible] stared at her [illegible] in amazement. "What's the matter?"

"Matter [illegible]" cried Mrs. Hasdock. "I thought I'd been robbed, but I made a mistake. I'm sorry to disturb you this way."

"What's that?" demanded the landlady, pointing to the sprig of green on the floor.

"That [illegible]"

The little bit of [illegible] on the floor which Mrs. Hasdock [illegible] nothing all the while staring at it with frightened eyes aroused the curiosity of the landlady sufficiently to make her bend over and pick it up.

"Oh, it's heliotrope, ain't it?"

"Is it?" asked Mrs. Hasdock.

"Yes, it's the same thing the man on the top floor [illegible] I wonder if he's been in here."

"How do I know?" snarled Joe.

"Don't [illegible] screaming in my house," the [illegible] warning tone. "If [illegible] better get out. I want [illegible] to know [illegible] a strictly respectable place and I don't want [illegible]"

Mrs. Hasdock was apologetic [illegible] the landlady's feelings were at length mollified, but the mystery of the perfume still puzzled her and she wondered what connection Mrs. Hasdock's terror and the presence of the two roomers on the top floor had to do with each other.

She seemed [illegible] evidence of their relation a few hours later, when the house was sunk in sleep and Heliotrope Harry had perfected the plan by which he hoped to place Alice forever beyond the reach of harm.

Sought Certificate

The moment the [illegible] had left the room Mrs. Hasdock [illegible] haste sought for the birth certificate. The discovery [illegible] her into a spasm [illegible] rage. With her hands [illegible] down curses [illegible] who was driving her [illegible] she imagined [illegible] her in cold blood.

Again and again she searched for the paper. It was gone, together with the letter she had [illegible]. She sat down to think what to do next. Without this evidence [illegible] case was woefully lacking. How could she prove that Annie Hasdock was in reality Alice Hale?

Idle curiosity had once moved her to go to the little town where the child was born. She had found that the building in which all records had been kept had been wiped out by fire. The hopelessness of her position, made more hopeless through the loss of that valuable document roused her to a lust for revenge against this man who had come back like one from the grave to mock and balk her.

Evidently it was Heliotrope Harry's plan to prevent her from communicating the damaging facts of their daughter's parentage to the daughter. She sat brooding, wondering why she had not deposited [illegible] certificate in a safe [illegible] herself for her folly and [illegible] figure out some way to make good on her promise [illegible] the Assheton fortune.

She heard a noise at the door [illegible] She was at [illegible] and a [illegible] her card [illegible] waiting for [illegible] Harry to [illegible] his way in.

Ready to Shoot

Nothing happened. She waited [illegible] minutes, tense, fearful, ready [illegible] nothing happened. The [illegible] she sat [illegible] the [illegible] wandering [illegible]

[illegible] She had [illegible] It was [illegible] She dozed [illegible] She was struck [illegible] and she [illegible] again. When she opened her eyes she saw the heavy bureau [illegible] the door begin to move. At first she thought she was dreaming [illegible] the creaking of the furniture [illegible] dispelled this idea. She sat up in bed. Then [illegible] arose and grasped the pistol.

She had no illusions. She knew as well as though she could have looked through the walls who was pushing the door and she waited to shoot provided she had half a chance to justify herself.

She saw the door open far enough to admit a man's arm. She saw an arm reach in, an arm and a hand. Heliotrope Harry [illegible] an atomizer pressed the bulb and a fine spray of the heliotrope perfume permeated the room.

"AND you? Will you come?"

"Not tonight."

"Will you let us know when you can come, Oswald?"

Grismer picked up a shabby dressing gown from the back of a decrepit chair and put it on over his undershirt and trousers.

"Sure," he said pleasantly. "I've one or two matters to keep me here. I'll fix them up tonight. [illegible] And please make it very plain to Stephanie that I'm taking this affair beautifully and that the last thing I'd do would be to indulge in any foolishness to [illegible] her. [illegible] I'm really most interested in living. Tell her so. She will believe it. For I have never lied to her, Cleland."

They walked together to the area gate.

"Stephanie should see her attorneys," said Grismer. "The easiest way, I think, would be for her to leave the state and for me to go abroad. Her attorneys will advise her. But," he added carelessly, "there's time to talk over that with her. The main thing is to know that she will be free * * * And she will be * * * Good night, Cleland * * *" He laughed boyishly. "I've never been as happy in my whole life."

CHAPTER XXXIV.

WITH the clang of the closing gate, Grismer's handsome face altered terribly, and he turned deathly white for a moment.

He opened the gate and went out to the sidewalk where a young girl, unskilfully painted, stood looking about her preliminary to opening the night's campaign.

"Hello," she said tentatively.

"Ah," he said pleasantly, "a goddess of the stars."

She looked him over with the uncanny wisdom of her caste, and, young as she was, she [illegible] this man only the opportunity to waste her time.

"What's the matter?" she asked, glancing at his shabby dressing gown. "Up against it?"

"What I'm up against," he said absently, "will look good to you, too, some day."

"What's that?"

"Death, my dear."

"Quit kidding," she retorted with an uneasy laugh. "You got your looks yet." She stepped nearer, looking at him curiously. "Nothing like that," she said. "You're a looker. [illegible]"

She was leaning against the railing where he stood resting his back. Presently he turned, leisurely, and surveyed her.

"You are young," he said. "You'll be a tired girl before you're up against what I am."

"What have you done?" she inquired curiously.

The Girl Lingers

"Nothing."

"Sure. That's why we all go up the river."

"I'm going across the river," he remarked smilingly.

"Which?"

"The Styx. You never heard of it, I suppose."

"One of them dirty rivers in Jersey?"

He nodded gravely.

"What's out there?" she inquired.

"I don't know, my dear."

"Then what's the idea?"

She waited for an answer, but his golden eyes were dreamily remote.

The girl lingered. Once or twice professional sense suggested departure, but when her tired eyes of a child rested on him something held her inert.

When she again interrupted his revery he looked around at her as though he had never before seen her, and she repeated what she had said.

"What?" he asked sharply.

"I've got a fiver that ain't workin'," she said again. "You can use it in your business if it's any good."

"My dear child," he said pleasantly, "you're very kind, but that's not what the matter is." He turned, dropped his arm on the railing, facing her. "What's your name?"

"Gloria Cameron."

"Come on," he said, good-humoredly, "what's your other name?"

"Anne."

"Anne what?"

"O'Hara."

"Will you wait a minute?"

She nodded uncertainly.

He went back through the area, entered his studio and dressed in his shabby street clothes.

The check was still lying on a small table where Cleland had placed it at his request. And now he picked it up, dipped a rusty pen into an ink bottle and indorsed the check, making it payable to Anne O'Hara. Then he took his straw hat and went out.

The girl was waiting.

"Anne," he said, "I want you to read what's written on this pretty perforated [illegible] of paper." He held it so that [illegible] electric light fell on it.

"Is it good?" she asked in an awed voice.

"Perfectly." He turned the check over and showed her the indorsement.

She found her voice presently.

"What are you putting over on me?"

He said:

"I'd give this back to you now, but it wouldn't be any good when the banks open tomorrow."

She stared her question, and he laughed:

"It's a law concerning checks. Never mind. But there's a way to beat it. I had a lot of money once. They'll take my paper at Square Jack Hennesey's. Shall we stroll up that way?"

She did not understand. It was quite evident that she had no faith in the scrap of paper either.

Bachelor Girl's Reflections

By HELEN ROWLAND

Copyright, 1920, by The Wheeler Syndicate, Inc.

THERE are two kinds of "late husbands"—the slow and the dead.

When a man and a girl profess to have an "understanding," it usually means that the man understands that the girl will marry him, if he ever decides to ask her.

After a time, "falling in love" becomes such a matter of habit with some men that no matter how often they "fall" they never receive a permanent injury—like marriage.

You can melt a man's heart, as you can melt iron, as long as the flame is there, but once his love has cooled, nothing on earth will soften it but another flame.

Nowadays, you can gauge the depth of a girl's mind merely by asking her whether she regards a husband as a blessing, a necessity, a luxury, an affliction, a joke or an opportunity.

Life is becoming wofully simplified, isn't it? For instance, a walk is called a "dance," a cowbell is regarded as a "musical instrument", one-room and bath constitute an "apartment," and one wife and a Pekinese make a "family."

Some girls want to marry for the same reason that prompts them to learn to run a motor car or to go up in an airplane—just in order to be able to SAY they've done it.

Making a man propose to you is something like teaching a cat to jump through a barrel, you don't expect him to do it gracefully, but the astonishing thing is that he does it at all.

Funny, but the moment a man's love for a woman ceases to be blind, it becomes a little lame.

Even love is brighter, if jewelled with consistency.

When Hearts Are Trumps

CHAPTER LXV.

ARTHUR PAGE made a bold stroke at luncheon that day.

He had already announced that he intended to stay at home this afternoon and decorate the rooms for the evening's festivities. Barbara's [illegible] had sent so many flowers that [illegible] drawing room and [illegible] with their fragrance.

"I am glad I ordered only ferns and chrysanthemums from the florist," Arthur remarked as he sat at the table with his sister and niece.

Cynthia regarded him in surprise. "Why, Arthur, I did not know that you had ordered anything from the florist. Why did you do it?"

"Because I wanted to," was the calm rejoinder. "And what is more, I telephoned to Daisy [illegible] and [illegible] about [illegible] and [illegible] the flowers and [illegible]"

[illegible] listeners gasped [illegible] from different reasons.

"Daisy coming! Oh, I am glad!" Barbara exclaimed.

"But Arthur," Miss Cynthia expostulated, "why did you send for Daisy? Surely Barbara, Delia and I are quite sufficient [illegible]"

Her brother [illegible] "I shall not have you [illegible] in the drawing room at all this afternoon," he said. "Daisy and I have planned just what we [illegible] Meanwhile you and Delia can fix the dishes, etc. The caterer's man will be up at five to assist you. And you [illegible] will play [illegible] and do nothing but rest up for tonight."

Cynthia hazarded one final protest.

"Really, Arthur, this is [illegible] knew. Moreover [illegible] for [illegible] extravagant affair [illegible] month before Barbara's wedding [illegible] realize what it is going to [illegible]"

She [illegible] father. With a vehement slam that made [illegible] the man of the house brought [illegible] down upon the table.

A Stern Rebuke.

"Cost!" he ejaculated. "I don't care a hang what it costs.

"I am sick of this everlasting talk of expense, and I will [illegible] to no more of it—do you understand? Once and for all [illegible] me tell [illegible] that the affair tonight and Barbara's wedding a month from now are cheap affairs compared to what I can afford to give her [illegible] what I will give her if I want. Let that be the last word on this subject. One would think, to hear you talk, that I was a poor man, Cynthia. I have enough money to keep my family in comfort as long as they and I live. Th[illegible]"

In all her life Barbara had never seen her uncle so angry [illegible] It is to be doubted if her aunt had ever witnessed such wrath on the part of her usually docile brother. She paled before it and [illegible] silenced for the time.

As for Barbara, she felt a [illegible] that she knew was unholy [illegible] very stimulating—later she [illegible] be sorry for her discomfited [illegible] At present she was only conscious that her uncle had spoken truth—that he had openly [illegible] that she—Barbara—was not a [illegible] upon his resources.

Then why had he ever said [illegible] to Aunt Cynthia that the [illegible] was true?

Had he ever suggested [illegible]

The question seemed [illegible] She would not ask it even [illegible] self. Doubtless Aunt Cynthia [illegible] believed that her brother [illegible] not well off, and, believing [illegible] had told her niece what she thought to be the truth.

If she—Barbara—had [illegible] known earlier!

Yet it would have done no good—for her uncle wanted [illegible] to marry his friend.

She had heard him speak of his approval of John's suit on that [illegible] Sunday night after [illegible] had gone [illegible] to New York.

[illegible] roused herself from her reverie as her uncle addressed her.

His manner had changed entirely and his eyes were full of a fatherly affection.

A New Phase

"Did I scare you by my outburst, dear?" he asked.

Timidly she spoke, glancing first toward [illegible] her aunt had sat. But Aunt Cynthia had quietly slipped from the room.

"No, uncle," Barbara said, frankly, "you did not scare me. Indeed [illegible]"

She hesitated.

"[illegible]" her uncle urged. "What [illegible]"

[illegible] with a nervous laugh [illegible] some de[illegible] sits all up and down [illegible] Why uncle, I never [illegible] you speak out like that [illegible] you could be so [illegible]

[illegible] "I'm glad you are," the girl admitted.

"You believe me, don't you?" he demanded.

"[illegible] I am right about [illegible] Daisy [illegible] then go up to your [illegible] elsewhere—and rest and [illegible]"

[illegible] brought a glow to his [illegible]

ABOUT OUR GOOD FRIEND
Mooney

Copyright, 1920, by The Ledger Syndicate

MOONEY

VARIATIONS — O'Mooney, O'Monagh, Money.

RACIAL ORIGIN—Irish.

SOURCE—A given name.

THE family names in the Mooney group, like virtually all Irish surnames, are derived from a given name, and originally bore either the prefix "O" or "Mac," signifying in the Irish tongue "descendant of," and came into being first as tribal or clan names, being adopted by all the followers of the chieftain's banners as well as by his own family.

Strangely enough, one of the variations of this family name of Mooney, or "O'Maonaigh," which is the ancient Irish form, comes very close in its English meaning to the meaning of the given name from which the family name is developed. This variation is Money. The given name in the ancient Irish was "Maoinach," from the Irish word "maoine," meaning "wealth."

The domination of English custom and language, as well as English law, in some instances, compelled at various periods the anglicizing of Irish family names, and the existence of such widely varying forms as Mooney, Moynagh and Money is traceable to the fact that the English and Irish alphabets do not parallel each other completely, and the pronunciation of the Irish diphthongs is quite different from English.

Family names of the Mooney group are common, both in Ulster and in Kings county, having been derived from different chieftains of the same name.

Tomorrow—Piper.

Encore! Caw!

The bucolic one had been asked his opinion of scarecrows.

"No good at all," he grunted—"leastways against the crows in this district. Only last year we put up what we thought was a fine scarecrow—a man pointing a gun."

"Well, what happened?"

"Why, all the crows in the world seemed to be feeding in that field, and while one crow perched on the gun and worked the trigger, another was falling down, pretending to be shot."

Cruel Sarcasm

"This," said the fond young wife, with a smile, as she passed a plate of pudding to her husband, "is cottage pudding. I made it myself."

The husband tasted it. "I should have known that it was cottage pudding," he remarked. "Would you?" she asked delighted. "Yes, I can taste the plaster and the wallpaper."

Too Big a Family

"I can't do the family washin', ma'am," said the new girl. "Why not, pray?" asked the lady of the house. "The family's too large, ma'am." "But there's only my husband and myself in the family." "Yes, ma'am, but look at the size of you."

WOMAN SUFFERED IN SILENCE

Made Believe She Was Well

A woman of New Auburn, Maine, writes: "There must be [illegible] of women [illegible] as I did. I suffered in silence [illegible] times on account of [illegible] pride but [illegible] I know that a good laxative is essential to good health. I pretended I was all right when I wasn't. I had terrible pains, was grouchy and my headaches almost killed me with pain and worst of all I had a sallow unbecoming complexion which was not helped by face powders. Why didn't I try to cure myself, rather than pretend? After taking Dr. True's Elixir I now know that a laxative was what I needed. Dr. True's Elixir is mild and pleasant to take and works fast right for me. My complexion cleared up, bright and ruddy, blemishes vanished and everyone remarked how much better I looked." Mrs. E. J. AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Common garden Sage and Sulphur makes streaked, faded or gray hair dark and youthful at once.

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, at very little cost. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.—Advertisement.

Recommend Resinol to that friend with skin trouble

If you have a friend suffering with eczema or other itching, burning eruption, what greater kindness could you do him than to say:

"Why don't you try Resinol? I know you have experimented with a dozen treatments, but I believe Resinol is different. It does not claim to be a 'cure-all'—simply a soothing, healing ointment, free from all harsh drugs, that physicians prescribe widely in just such cases as yours. Do get a jar today!"

Resinol Ointment is sold by all druggists.

Relieve Your Rheumatism For 25c.

NR does it by improving digestion, assimilation and elimination—the logical way.

NR Today—Relief or No Pay

There are three vital processes of human existence,—the digestion of food, the extraction of nourishment from it and the elimination of the waste.

Let anything interfere with these processes,—let them be interrupted or improperly carried on, and sickness of some kind follows.

Poor digestion and assimilation means failure to derive full nourishment from food and that in turn often means impoverished blood, weakness, anemia, etc. Poor elimination means an accumulation of waste matter which poisons the body, lowers vitality, decreases the power of resistance to disease and leads to the development of many serious ills.

Rheumatism,—due to some interference with the process of elimination, failure to get rid of certain body poisons,—cannot be expected to yield to any medicine that fails to correct the condition responsible for it. Could any reasonable person expect to rid himself of rheumatic pain as long as rheumatic poison is allowed to remain in the body.

Think of this. It explains the success of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets) in so many cases where other medicines have failed. Thousands are using NR Tablets every day and getting relief. Why pay five or ten times as much for uncertain things? A 25c box of Nature's Remedy (NR Tablets), containing enough to last twenty-five days,—must help you, must give you prompt relief and satisfactory benefit or cost you nothing.

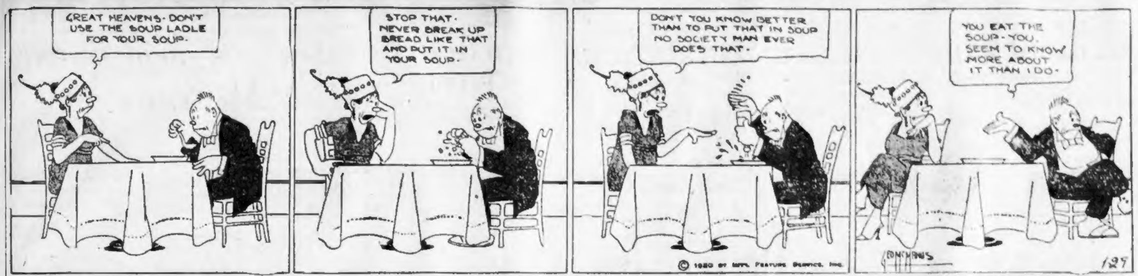

And Nature's Remedy is not only for the relief of rheumatism. It improves digestion, tones the liver, regulates kidney and bowel action, improves the blood and cleanses the whole system. PRICES MIXED IN BOSTON

Trading Dull on the Local Exchange; Curb Prices Lower at the Opening

Prices were up in Boston when business began on the local exchange and the tone was steady during the first hour as far as the whole list is concerned. Trading was quiet and lacking in feature. Most of the large changes were downward. Among issues to decline a point or more were Boston & Maine A, Carson Hill and Wickwire. Rails were quiet and Swift & Co. was the only packing issue to appear up to mid-morning. Coppers were irregular and rather heavy. Mexican Investment was a strong stock, advancing more than a point early in the session.

Fractional gains were made by American Woolen preferred, Calumet & Arizona, Seneca, United Shoe, New England Telephone and Boston Mexican Oil.

Among stocks to recede fractionally were American Telephone, Copper Range, Quincy, North Butte, Swift & Co., Bigheart and Atlas Tack. The market was irregular by 11 o'clock.

CURB MARKET OPENS WEAK.

The curb market had a weak opening and was inactive. Among early leaders were Boston & Montana, which has provided the bulk of the trading on this exchange so far this week. Merrimac Development and Mutual. Boston & Montana opened a cent higher, and stocks to start weak were Black Hawk, Boston & Wyoming, Merrimac Development, Republic Navigation and Porcupine Premier.

At the end of an hour Boston & Montana was off 1 cent at 40 cents, Merrimac Development 3 cents at 23 cents and Republic Navigation ¼ at 11. Among gains were Mutual, 1 cent at 51 cents; Arizona Tip Top, 1 cent at 12 cents; Bagdad, 2 cents at 22 cents, and Black Hawk, 1 cent at 39 cents. The market tone had improved.

Dividend Declarations

United States Smelting, Refining & Mining Company declared quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on common and regular quarterly dividend of 87½ cents on preferred, payable Oct. 15 to holders of record Oct. 7.

Anaconda Copper Mining Company declared quarterly dividend of $1 a share, payable Nov. 22 to holders of record Oct. 16. Anaconda paid $1 a share three and six months ago.

Commonwealth Edison Co. declared quarterly dividend of $2 a share, payable Nov. 1 to holders of record Oct. 15.

Chicago Pneumatic Tool Co., declared quarterly dividend of 2 per cent., payable Oct. 25, to stock of record Oct. 15.

Mariand Refining Co. declared quarterly 12½-cent dividend, payable Oct. 25 to stock of record Sept. 30.

Cotton Condition Estimates

The condition of the cotton crop is rated at 60 against 69 a month ago by the National Ginners' Association and it figures that up to Saturday last ginning totalled 2,120,000 bales against 1,835,214 for the corresponding 1919 period and 3,770,611 bales two years ago. The Southern Products Company places crop conditions at 57.8 and the indicated yield at 11,540,000 bales, excluding linters. The Memphis Commercial Appeal places cotton at 61.3, against 68.4 a month ago, and the indicated yield at 12,600,000 bales, against 13,029,000 last month.

RAIL ISSUES ARE THE FIRMEST

Many Low Priced Carriers Sell at 1920 Highs; Steels Lead the Decline

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were weak in New York in the second hour, the reaction which began before mid-morning gaining in force. Steels led the decline and were followed by oils, motors, tires and other issues. Rails were the strongest class, but were affected by the downward movement. Strong at the start, they became irregular before noon. Some losses were large. Weakest issues included Republic Steel, Crucible, International Paper, Mexican Petroleum, Houston Oil, Woolen common, which sold at a new 1920 low, Maxwell and Pan-American.

They were off from two to six points. U. S. Steel declined more than a point. Call loans renewed at 7 per cent. Foreign exchange rates were irregular as to changes, opening quotations being demand sterling $3.49; francs demand $.06772, lire, $.0419; marks, $.0161.

STRONG AT THE OPENING.

Prices were up at the opening, and rails were the early feature, a number of low-priced ones selling at new 1920 highs. Within half an hour this list included Wisconsin Central, Western Maryland, Seaboard, Peoria & Eastern, Minneapolis & St. Louis, Wheeling & Lake Erie, New York, Chicago & St. Louis, Chicago & Alton, Kansas City Southern and Pittsburgh & West Virginia. Auto stocks were weak, Willys-Overland and Maxwell selling at record lows since listed on the exchange. Mexican Petroleum was strong and active at the outset, but other oils were quiet, although they reached a higher level during the first hour. Steels were less in evidence than usual at the beginning, United States Steel being the only active issue in this department. It began with a decline, but rallied. Baldwin continued to lead equipments. Tires had a better tone than before this week. Shipping shares showed improvement over yesterday. Before the end of an hour traders took profits, and some stocks reacted to below the opening level. Steels were affected as a class. It was a purely professional market. Early strength was due to covering.

SENTIMENT STILL BEARISH.

Sentiment among the "regulars" is still bearish and many of them have increased their short commitments this week. They maintain that the logic of the situation points to reduced revenues for industrial and many other corporations. Price cutting of commodities is giving them confidence as to the wisdom of their speculative position. Much is being said in financial districts about the situation in the steel trade. It is asserted that independent manufacturers will have to cut prices to the U. S. Steel level and that the latter corporation will report decreased orders at the end of this month. Foodstuffs as well as commodities are being liquidated and it is now generally believed that the era of lower living costs is approaching.

U. S. SUPREME COURT RECONVENES ON MONDAY

The United States Supreme Court will reconvene on Monday next and will take up many cases during its coming session which will have a bearing upon business. The first case of that kind to be heard is the government suit against the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company and which is called "the anthracite coal trust case." Another important case will test the constitutionality of the Lever act against profiteering.

Among anti-trust cases which will not be argued early in the coming court term are dissolution suits against the American Can Company, the Eastman Kodak Company and the Keystone Watch Case Company.

SILVER MEN HOPE FOR LOWER COSTS

Silver producers are hoping that the price-cutting movement will extend far enough not only to reduce living costs, but other expenses incidental to mining. Mine owners claim that radical labor leaders have used high prices to create unrest in mining camps. At last year's rate of production it will take this country more than three years to fill the order for 207,000,000 ounces of silver for mints given by Secretary of the Treasury Houston.

On Monday silver bought under this mandate at $1 an ounce amounted to 207,000 ounces, making the total of purchases under the Pittman act but 15,634,647 ounces.

Big Order for Woolens

According to a consular report, Rumania has awarded a woolen order totaling $9,000,000 with thirty-seven Canadian mills. The cloth order amounts to 1,900,000 yards and the balance will be made up of stockings, sweaters, underwear and other knit goods. Rumania has arranged with British financiers to pay cash for the goods at ocean ports in Canada.

Mineral Oil Exports

Mineral oil shipped abroad during August by this country is estimated at $48,679,856 in value, compared with a high record of $51,243,933 in July. Export for eight months ended August 31, were $347,627,254, an increase of $133,014,291 over the corresponding 1919 period.

Copper Market Still Dull

No improvement as to copper is reported. The market remains very dull, with prices purely nominal. Second hands have sold metal at 18 cents a pound or less delivered, a small producer is offering it at 18⅜ cents and considerable tonnage has been sold by a large producer at 18½.

Foreign Trade of France

During the first eight months of 1920 the foreign trade of France totalled 35,967,333,000 francs, against 27,486,564,000 for the corresponding period of 1919.

Needs Five Million Buildings

This country needs 5,000,000 more buildings, according to the estimate given out at Washington by the United States Housing Corporation, but it is believed that the shortage will soon be reduced because of a reduction in the cost of materials. Labor Department reports show that they are going down and that a 50 per cent. reduction is warranted. It would leave dealers in building materials 178 per cent. ahead of the game as played by them in pre-war days, department's records indicate.

Boston Financial Notes

Attleboro, Mass., will receive bids until September 30 at 10 a. m., for a loan of $50,000, dated October 1, 1920, and payable April 1, 1921.

Cobalt silver shipments since August 1 are estimated at $2,500,000 in value.

It is reported from Butte, Mont., that the ore showing on the 2,700-foot level of the Colorado mine of Davis-Daly is materially increasing the reserve tonnage. Drifting thus far has been confined to two of the ore bodies opened in which the tonnage of first-class ore uncovered is of very satisfactory proportions. One body of ore seven feet wide has not yet been drifted upon as the ore in sight already is somewhat taxing the capacity of the level.

North Adams, Mass., has awarded a temporary loan of $50,000, dated September 28 and payable November 17, to Bond & Goodwin at 5.89 per cent. discount.

The directors of the Fourth Atlantic National Bank have declared the usual quarterly dividend of 3 per cent., payable October 1 to holders of record September 29.

It is reported from Sydney, Nova Scotia, that the directors of the Dominion Coal Co. have ordered the expenditure of $6,000,000 on plants and new equipment. It is intended to open a new mine at O'Neil's Point, where it will tap the Phalem Seam at a depth of 700 feet. It is expected that the mine will have an output of 2,500 tons daily.

U. S. Smelting earnings for the first eight months of this year totalled $4,362,906, and after deducting for depreciation, depletion and Federal taxes the net profit for the period was $3,197,501.

Wall Street Briefs

It is reported from Chicago that the Illinois Central has arranged to sell through Kuhn, Loeb & Co. $8,000,000 equipment trust certificates running 10 years and bearing 7 per cent. interest. The money is expected to cost the company between 7¼ per cent. and 7½ per cent.

On behalf of the syndicate offering $20,000,000 Kingdom of Norway 20-year 8 per cent. sinking fund external gold bonds the National City Co. announces the issue was heavily oversubscribed and the books have been closed.

The $4,000,000 first mortgage 6 per cent. first mortgage bonds to be issued by the Gulf, Mobile & Northern road will be used in part to secure existing bank loans of $408,000 and government loans, tentatively arranged, totaling $995,000.

The Bank of Germany in its latest reports shows holdings of gold to the amount of 1,098,211,000 marks while paper treasury notes in circulation total 58,927,894,000 marks.

Besides about $10,000,000,000 loaned by the United States to foreign governments American credits approximating $3,000,000,000 have been extending, making a total foreign indebtedness to this country of around $13,000,000,000. Uncle Sam has certainly become something like a world lender.

Railroad Earnings

Western Maryland reports for the third week in September that gross increased $243,277, while the gain from January 1 was $3,718,596.

St. Louis Southwestern gross increased $216,688 in the third week of this month.

Delaware, Lackawanna & Western reports for August an increase of $1,353,437 in operating revenue and a deficit, after charges, for the month of $2,934,507. For eight months operating revenue increased $1,050,878 while the deficit decreased $9,098,422.

During August Norfolk & Western gained $135,331 in operating revenue and its deficit decreased $3,593,266.

The Pennsylvania Railroad Co.'s gross for July this year increased $6,674,872 over that for the corresponding 1919 month. But for the seven months ended July 31, 1920, the road reported a net operating deficit of $33,109,221.

Cotton Market Opening

New York, Sept. 29.—The cotton market opened easier at a decline of 8 to 10 points, reflecting weak cables and active selling by Liverpool. Pressure was rather heavy because of favorable weather reports from the belt and indications for another bearish weekly report. Spot houses were buyers, but the South sold. Private advices said that the storm appeared to be headed toward the Gulf coast, but its movement was still uncertain. At the end of fifteen minutes the market was active and heavy at a decline of 35 to 70 points, October being the weakest month. Opening prices were: October, 24.50; December, 22.69; January, 21.50; March, 21.20; May, 20.80; July, 20.25.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, Sept. 29.—Wheat opened ½c higher to ¾c lower. Corn was ⅜c to ⅝c higher. Oats were ⅛c to ⅜c higher. Provisions were unchanged for pork, 5c to 45c lower for lard and 45c lower for ribs. Opening prices were: Wheat—December, 2.22½ to 2.23½; March, 2.18½. Corn—September, 1.27; December, 95⅝ to 96. Oats—December, 58 to 58¼; May, 62¼ to 62⅜. Pork—October, 23.00. Lard—October, 19.00; January, 17.00 to 16.90. Ribs—October, 15.80.

GRIFFITH FILM TEAR PRODUCER

Harriet Moore Finds Hardened Man Is as Susceptible as Fair Sex

By HARRIET MOORE

Daily hardened men, bothered by bank closings and bomb plottings, and women, worried over the high cost of sugar for the Fall preserves, pass into the doors to a magic play and take out their handkerchiefs in the dark of the theatre and a sound of weeping is suspiciously in the air.

These same hardened men and worried women pass before a magic picture, "Way Down East," and live again the sorrows of the little heroine, Anna Moore, whose trusting young life was blighted by the man who arranged the mock marriage, and laughed at her sorrow when the terrible truth was made known to her.

In the daily audience at the Majestic Theatre are probably the daughters and the sons, mayhap the granddaughters and the grandsons, of two generations of Americans who have gone before, and wept before, and come out of the theatre touched of heart that so good a child could suffer so much. For the statistics tell us, as quoted by David Griffith on the program ," the number of mock marriages in America is well known to social workers."

GRIFFITH'S MASTERPIECE.

But this inimitable play, done in the fashion of that master, Griffith, commands our wonder and our admiration, even as it does our pity and our tears. The comfortable days of old-fashioned rural life are shown in Griffith's masterpiece. The little country girl sets out for Boston and encounters the stately butler and has her little tilts with her snobbish cousins, and is afraid to ask them to loan her money, though she does deliver to her pompous aunt the "hug-me-tight" mother knitted for that frigid lady.

After the heroine's heart is broken, comes the triumph so dear to woman. The hard old Puritan of a father, who turned the child out, repents when his own son has risked his life on the ice jam above Niagara, and begs the heroine's forgiveness.

And the villain is properly scorned by all. He wants to marry his poor little victim in the end, but she will not. She tells everyone that there is no such thing as their wicked double standard of morals, and they see a new light. The wicked are punished and poor little heroine is taken in and loved and comforted, while the audience weeps in sympathy.

If you go to see this endearing play and do not come away suspiciously damp about your eyes, shame to you.

SEE THRILLING RESCUE.

For you, old or young, who like to see deeds brave as deeds of knights of old, threefold are your delights when you thrill as the hero, bravely plunging across ice cakes reeling under him, at last reaches the poor little heroine none too soon to save her from a dreadful death down whirling Niagara.

A philosopher of old Greece once said that it was very good for people to cry at the theatre as sorrow purifies the emotions. So it is with this quaint old play. The hardened movie fan who thinks he has seen all the plots hashed and rehashed, will find infinite enjoyment in this thrilling play of simple folk.

TUNEFUL SHOW AT TREMONT

"Girl in the Spotlight" Provides Rare Entertainment in Musical Comedy

By FRED J. McISAAC,
Dramatic Editor.

There is quite a lot of class to "The Girl in the Spotlight," which is sojourning at the Tremont Theatre for a short time.

In the first place it has a Victor Herbert score, quite a distinction in itself. Next George W. Lederer is the producer, and George has never failed to pick good looking girls from the days of "The Belle of New York" to the present.

Then it has three pretty good comedians. Most musical shows have to get along with one, and some haven't any; yet here comes Lederer with a flock of them.

SCORE MERRY AND AIRY.

Victor Herbert was around the opening night to dazzle the audience with the broadest shirtfront of any composer since Rossini. Last night Vic was gone, but he left his music, and it is as merry and airy a little score as he has turned out since "The Only Girl."

The Girl in the Spotlight" starts out like a good swift farce with musical interruptions, and it is one of the fastest first acts I have seen for quite a while. But the second act is just ordinary musical comedy which gradually loses speed until just before the end, when it goes into high again.

However, taking it by and large, it is a pretty good show. Anybody who can get a dozen laughs in an evening nowadays isn't entitled to a rebate, and I got at least forty.

Hal Skelly, the animated beanpole, is one of the principal comedians, but Eddie Dowling, the eccentric and original March hare, keeps him humping, and Nat Carr, as the Hebrew manager, supplies a lot of chuckles himself.

PROMISES TO BE SENSATION.

Mary Milburn, a sweet looking and mellow-voiced maiden, sang the title role. This youngster reminded me of Christie MacDonald as she appeared a dozen years ago. All she needs is to brush up her diction, so that you can understand what she is singing about, and she will be a sensation.

Ben Forbes is the tenor of the entertainment. Mr. Forbes is rather stiff and awkward, being a recent recruit, I believe from concert, but he shows nothing remarkable vocally, even for musical comedy.

Julia Kelety, as a vivacious French actress, sang one song, not on the program, with tremendous high notes, and got a huge hand. Minerva Grey, as a rough-voiced chorus girl, made quite a hit.

According to the program Lederer staged the production, and the chorus business was one of the most effective features of the whole show.

AMERICAN TO HAVE PLAY BY PLAY NEWS ON SERIES

A faithful baseball fan always regrets that he cannot take in the Worlds Series games. He regrets it until he loses sleep but—he always knows that he can find some consolation in the corking good stories sent in by wire from the big staff of the Boston American. He knows that Flatley, Damon Runyon, Hugh Fullerton, Jack Vieock and "Bugs" Baer will "shoot" the whole story over the wire, and that Jack Gillooly, Conway and others will add the Boston "slant" to the festivities. Everything is all set for the big opening next Tuesday. And the thirty-five or forty thousand loyal rooters who will have to "see" the games from the pages of the Boston American will get an eyeful—every day!

Boston's Banking Situation Needs Serious Thought

The banking situation in Boston needs a pretty serious and sober consideration. It may need a pretty serious investigation.

The history of the banking business in Boston has an interesting bearing upon the present situation. Not so many years ago Boston had over sixty banking institutions. There was a competition among the banks very healthy to the growth of the community.

Where there are a large number of banks serving the same community, those who control the funds of the banks are not so arrogant, so arbitrary, so exclusive, autocratic and unbusinesslike. They do not play favorites. They cannot afford to play favorites. They do not make some business men plethoric with credit and bankrupt or restrict the business of others by denying credit which ought to be given. With a large number of banks seeking clients, and with a vigorous governmental regulation department watching lest over-zeal for business should incite the banks to extend beyond the point of safety, you have a community ideally served with banking facilities.

As time went on the monopolistic spirit which pervaded the country twenty years ago took possession of the banking circles of Boston, and monopolists began to absorb and consolidate the banks, until at last Boston found herself as poorly served by banks as she was by railroads. Ten years ago the business men of this community were dependent practically upon five or six banks. The economic, social and political power of the men who controlled these banks was not only enormous but dangerous, and was at times dangerously exercised.

When the monopolistic craze died away as the result of the injury which it had done the country new banks began to spring up in Boston, and they have undoubtedly served a very useful purpose. But they have been regarded with a jealous eye by many of the old banking institutions which had things so much their own way in times gone by. With the government operation of the railroads and of the Boston Elevated Railway and of the Bay State, and with the increase of the banking institutions, the power of the old, big banks had been reduced to normal proportions.

The need of more banking institutions made the success of the new trust companies great and immediate.

But for a long time rumors have been afloat that the older banks propose "to get" the trust companies, and ugly rumors have been put in circulation about the banks proposed to be "got." There are many methods employed by some of the banks to discredit the institutions they propose "to get." The methods adopted are subtle and probably not actionable for slander, although they ought to be, for they are damaging and malicious and false in their implications. They even refuse to honor the certified checks of one of these marked banks. A certified check is a statement of the bank itself that the party presenting the check has on deposit the amount certified in the check, and that the bank certifying the check will reserve that amount with which to pay the check when it is presented.

Now this is the sort of contemptible by-play which is going on for the purpose of plunging the business community of Boston back into the old banking monopoly, in which the sky was the limit to favorites and not a penny was vouchsafed to all outside the charmed circle that they might sit in the game.

We do not mean to say that all the old banking institutions are in this conspiracy. Indeed, many of them are not. Some of the finest gentlemen Massachusetts has ever produced are in the banking business. Moreover, there are men like Mr. Philip Stockton of the Old Colony and Mr. Aiken of the National Shawmut who appreciate the danger of the present situation and wish to serve the community first and themselves afterward and who do not permit jealousy to subvert their public spirit.

The pity of it is that these methods are only effective with small, inexperienced bank depositors. They are usually either foreign-born or the sons of foreign-born—timid, inexperienced and gullible. The seasoned business men, the better educated men of all classes do not take these panics. It is the ignorant and the small man who has put all his savings in a bank who is frightened and made panic-stricken, and in his fright helps to bring about the very situation which scares him so.

Those who want to see a crash in this community amidst a period of tumbling prices, falling wages and increasing unemployment would do well to remember that those who sow the wind often reap the whirlwind.

League Used by Big Powers as Window Dressing

The Lithuanians and the Poles are having a dispute. It is over the boundary line. The Lithuanians charge that the Poles, imitating their conduct toward Russia, deliberately marched fifty miles into the territory of the Lithuanians for the purpose of occupying and establishing a frontier, which the Poles, advised by Marshal Foch of France, claim is their strategic frontier, but which has been Lithuanian territory for centuries.

Without having any definite proof of the fact, we suspect that Marshal Foch, continuing the French policy of using Poland as its catspaw to keep trouble stirred up in Western Europe, has excited Poland into a consideration of this as her strategic boundary line in order to use Polish armies to overthrow the Lithuanian government, which has made a satisfactory peace with Russia.

Whatever the truth may be with respect to motives, the fact remains that there is a dispute between the Lithuanians and Poles which has resulted in fighting and some slaughter. The Poles have appealed to the League of Nations and the Lithuanians are said to have agreed to arbitration.

Now what happened? The League of Nations lies as helpless as a cold-blooded jellyfish, with no nerve centre from which it can function. It is not the League Council that sends its representatives to investigate the differences between these two warring nations. The Entente Allies send their envoys.

It is curious to watch the gyrations of these countries. One moment, when the occasion calls for some pious declaration, they act through the league. The next moment, when something very practical is to be done, they cast aside the cloak of the league and act directly for themselves.

In not one thing in the last two years, with Europe still cursed by a score of wars and new ones starting almost every day, has the League of Nations done a practical thing to promote peace. While, on the other hand, the evidence is overwhelming that the very presence of a league has tended to promote these wars.

That the American people are awake to the truth of this important fact is shown by the results of the vote of the women in Maine and New Hampshire the other day. Without question, if there were even a hope that the league would just "tend" to promote peace, they would have accepted it in these elections. That they reject it shows you the palpable character of the pretenses of those who, like President Wilson, talk one way and always act the opposite way.

Our hero, his bride and the fourteen children, together with their friends Barney and George, make use of the new electric "Amplifier," which enables the listener to hear the slightest sound a long distance away. They want to see if they can detect the approach of victory. Do they hear it? Do you hear a landlord reducing his rent? Do you hear a little boy asking to have his face washed? Do you hear a lady voter telling her right age at the polls? Quit your kidding! But wait—there's more to come. Look for the next instalment. If you once begin it you won't lay it down till you lay it—

More Truth Than Poetry

Campaign in Pinkneyville

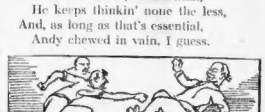

By S. E. KISER

WELL, the time is drawin' nearer
For the ballots to be cast,
But there's nothing seems much clearer
Than we've had it in the past.
Ezra Comstock licked Sam Shattick
For supportin' Cox's claim,
But Sam's goin' Democratic
In'November, just the same.

HIRAM COOK has separated
From his wife, they say, for good,
And a stir has been created
All around the neighborhood.
Hi's against the League of Nations,
Which, he says, is rotten bad,
But it suits his wife's relations,
And especially her dad.

OTHERWISE, there's little doin'
Just at present, out this way,
Though it's hinted something's brewin'
And may blow up any day.
I've been told that they are buyin'
Votes to help the G. O. P.,
But I guess they must be lyin'—
No one's been corruptin' me.

SO there's nothin' that's exciting'
In the situation here;
Andy Jones come near to bitin'
Off Tom Putterson's left ear,
But Tom tells me, confidential,
He keeps thinkin' none the less,
And, as long as that's essential,
Andy chewed in vain, I guess.

PROVE IT FOR YOURSELF

Again it is announced by one of the leading financiers that prices are on the decline. If you doubt his word, ask the price of a new hat.

AN EASY WINNER

In every human being, it is claimed, two natures are struggling for supremacy. The profiteering nature seems to be on top in most instances.

Letters to the Editor

Boycott Suggested

Editor Boston American:

While all the world looks on in horror, England is still allowed to pursue the even tenor of her criminal way. The ends and purposes for which the World War was professedly fought by the United States, viz., that no people should be denied the privilege of determining its own form of government, and that equal justice should be accorded all peoples, however small, have been shown to be the veriest catchwords by the ease with which Bloody Albion has been allowed to continue her policy of repression and extermination.

Ireland is today in the throes of as sanguinary a struggle for her national existence as has ever been waged. The blood of her sons and daughters is every day staining her city streets and her green hillsides. Ten thousand paid agents of England are at work day and night in the United States, according to Lord Northcliffe. The Loyal Coalition, with its unknown personnel, is still allowed to show itself in the city of Boston.

There is, however, in the hands of the American people, and especially do I now address myself to those of Irish extraction, a weapon which is most powerful and effective—the boycott on all English-made goods. Let this subject be taken up in every city and town, let it be known that that merchant who continues to handle English-made products can no longer hope for your patronage. Let it be known far and wide that no English labelled article can be disposed of in this country. Let us have concerted action, and it will be a matter of a very short time when results will show.

"SUSPICION FAMILY" ALWAYS BUSY

By Damon Runyon

Copyright, 1920, Star Company.

SUSPICION is probably congenital.

I. Doubt marries Miss Trust and the offspring is Suspicion, meanest and unhappiest of thoughts.

I was talking to Henry W. Suspicion himself the other night. Before I left him he had expressed suspicion of most of the current goings on in this old world.

He said he thinks MacSwiney is taking food. He mentioned a prominent playwright and added the opinion that the fellow had probably stolen the idea of his latest success. He spoke of the recent triumph of a young actress, and said no doubt it was due to a certain "pull" with the manager.

Suspicious Sports.

He said he suspects that So-and-so, the artist, hires another man to do his drawing, and that the writings attributed to the famous Mr. What's-his-name are written by some one else.

His mental finger waggled momentarily at baseball and various other forms of sport, and then pointed meaningly at a friend of ours, who lives rather well.

"I don't know how he does it," said Henry W. Suspicion, darkly, "but I've got an idea."

I suppose everybody should so conduct himself as never to be open to suspicion, but how are you going to do it nowadays, with Henry always around watching, and all of Henry's brothers and sisters, too?

If a man declares in favor of anything, the Suspicion family suspects his motives. If he declares against anything, they wonder why.

No Dark Clouds

I reflected on these matters as I wended my way homeward the other night after leaving Henry W. Suspicion. I was thinking how much nicer it is to lead a clear, unsuspecting existence, with no dark clouds of suspicion to obscure the vision.

It was late, and I had to ring the doorbell of my home several times before my wife finally appeared.

"Where have you been until this hour?" she inquired.

"Why," I said, blithely, "I've been down town thinking up an article on suspicion. About how suspicious people are, you know."

"Just a moment," she said. "Do you expect me to believe that story?"

Yes, indeed, there is certainly a lot of suspicion in this old world?

DO YOUR PART AT HOME

There are a whole lot of fathers who think that children are to be cared for solely by the mother, and that if they provide a living for them they have performed their duty.

Are you one of these fathers?

Do you feel that when you get home at night you should not be bothered with anything concerning the children?

Do you think that all responsibility ceases for you when you leave your office?

Do you say to the fretful child, "Go to your mother?"

You won't try to pacify the child because you think your work is done.

But how about the mother, whose work is never done?

Your wife works more hours than you do, has more to annoy her and has greater responsibilities.

In rearing a family there is a lot of hard work besides providing a living.

If you are a father, do your part.

And it is your part to share equally in the bringing up of your little family.

Victim of Habit

WHENEVER you hear a man boasting that he always votes the straight ticket of his party, regardless of the issues or the character and ability of the candidates, look him over good, for there you see the spectacle of a man who deliberately refuses to use the mind that God gave him. He is content to let some one else do his thinking for him.

SEA'S LEVEL AND SHAPE OF THE EARTH

By Garrett P. Serviss

"Kindly state the relation between the level of the sea and the equator. In a little dispute I stated that the equator is the imaginary line equally distant from the two poles, the level of the sea forming this line. If I am wrong kindly explain why any altitude is calculated from the level of the sea.—M. C., Mt. Vernon, N. Y."

YOU are right in thinking that the equator is a line encircling the earth half way between the poles, but wrong in supposing that the equator forms the base, called sea level, from which altitude is measured. If your supposition were correct the United States would lie several miles below sea level instead of from a few feet to several thousand feet above it.

The real starting point for altitude, if we consider the globe as a whole, is the earth's centre of gravity, assumed to coincide with its centre of figure.

Highest Point

Now the equator thus considered lies on the most elevated part of the earth, i. e., the part most distant from the centre, and if its level were extended as a spherical surface all around the earth, the surface of the earth of itself would fall more and more below that level as the poles were approached, and at the actual poles it would be found about thirteen miles below the level of the equator. This results from the fact that the earth is not a true sphere, but is a slightly oblate spheroid, swollen around the equator and depressed about the poles.

But, for measurement of the altitudes of particular objects and places, situated at various points on the surface of the earth, we need some other point of beginning than the earth's centre. Such a point, or rather base, is furnished by the water of the oceans.

Liquid Pressure

In consequence of the law of liquid pressure water under the action of gravity "seeks its level," i. e., keeps its free surface everywhere at right angles to the direction of gravity or the direction of the earth's centre.

This being so, it is evident that the general level of the oceans, covering nearly three-quarters of the earth's surface, and intercommunicating, must form an excellent base for altitude measurement, because the surface of the oceans as a whole is symmetrically arranged around the centre of gravity.

What we measure, then, when we ascertain the elevation of a table land, or a mountain peak, is the altitude above the level of the sea at corresponding latitude, but not the distance from the centre of the earth.

Stars and Stripes

It is refreshing to hear Candidate Harding say that he "doesn't know" what tax changes should be made. Until all the needs are canvassed, nobody else will know, either. But tradition keeps most candidates posed in the posture of knowing it all.
